Top Of The Morning

WEATHER

Rain and fog are again forecast for today as temperatures will take a downward trend. High today will be in the upper 40s and the low around 38. Winds are variable at 8 to 16 mph. Probability of precipitation is about 100 per cent today. Tomorrow will be cloudy and cool with a chance of precipitation. Temperatures will be in the upper 40s. Yesterday's results: no precipitation; river, 4.0 feet and rising; high temperature, 62; low 30. Sunrise is at 6:11 a.m. and sunset 6:42 p.m.

WARREN COUNTY

In an attempt to overcome past deficiencies in obtaining the assigned quota for blood in Warren County, the local Red Cross chapter is aiming for 200 pints on the April 13 visit of the bloodmobile. Page One.

Republicans registered almost three-to-one more than Democrats this period in the county, and the GOP now enjoys about that same margin in total registration. The registration period closed at 9 p.m. yesterday. Page One.

Sheffield firemen were called to two fires Saturday, one in the early morning and another in the afternoon. The first involved a house and the second a garage. Page One.

The local unit of Soil Conservation Service pointed to development of natural springs as playing a prominent part of its work for the past year. The drying up of wells has prompted land owners to turn to natural springs for water. Page A-8.

Joseph McAmbly, county development association president, and Robert Dilks, vacation bureau chairman, discussed the accomplishments of the bureau at yesterday's meeting of the Rotary Club. Page A-8.

Things are swinging at Warren Area High School — the things being rings, trapezes, and students on parallel bars in preparation for the school's circus April 20-22 at the gymnasium. Page A3.

PENNSYLVANIA

While the Supreme Court delayed until June the Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads' bid to merge, stockholders of the Pennsy were told the merger is the key to the system's plans for "revitalization." Page A5.

Pickets at dairies in Pennsylvania did little—if anything—to slow down deliveries of milk. The picketing was done by members of the National Farmers Organization. Page A5.

NEW YORK STATE

Jamestown City Council began plans concerning paving of River st., reparation of the sewage treating plant and extension of city streets. During the lengthy meeting much discussion was given concerning the possible blocking of paving plans of River st. by Erie Lackawanna Railroad. Page A2.

THE NATION

The sky will light up today from a space shot by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. The rocket will release barium vapors which will tinge the sky over the eastern seaboard red, green, blue, and yellow. Page One.

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy said he will not run for President in 1968 and will attempt to have his name removed from ballots in the primaries in several states, should it appear there. An aide said he has no intention to seek the presidency next year and supports a Johnson-Humphrey ticket. Page A5.

Arthur Goldberg, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations is expected by top Democrat officials to resign from that post and seek election to the Senate, opposing popular Sen. Jacob Javits. Another possibility is re-nomination to the Supreme Court when a vacancy is created by the retirement of Thomas Clark. Page A2.

THE WORLD

In Vietnam, the air war stepped up somewhat when U.S. aircraft flew within spitting distance of Haiphong, the main harbor of North Vietnam. A missile sight was knocked out, but there was no contact with MIGs as on Sunday. In the ground war, sporadic fighting continued but there was no significant battles or encounters. Page One.

The United States disclosed that ships trading with Hanoi have fired at U.S. aircraft over the Gulf of Tonkin. The aircraft have not been hit nor have they returned the fire. There were at least two instances, Pentagon records show. Page A3.

SPORTS

An important Warren Hot Stove League meeting has been slated for Thursday evening at 7:30 in the Holy Redeemer Church basement. In danger of floundering this year, the success of the league depends on the turnout. Page A6.

The Warren County Old-Timers Athletic Association announced last night that all proceeds realized from the sale of memberships to the group would be divided among the county high schools for a scholarship fund. The association meets Sunday to elect officers. Page A6.

Juan Marchal ended his holdout yesterday and signed with the San Francisco Giants for a reported $100,000. The ace right-hander was said to be in top condition and ready to throw. Page A5.

Heavyweight champ Cassius Clay won a short stay from his April draft call when his records were transferred from Louisville to Houston, his new home. Draft Board officials, however, stated that the delay in Clay's induction was only temporary. Page A6.

MARKETS

The delay in the merger of the Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads pushed their sagging prices on the New York Stock Exchange down even farther. The market closed with some losses.

The prime rate of interest on business loans dropped to 5 1/2 per cent at practically all of the nation's major banks. What effect it will have on the market or the economy remains obscure. Page A2.

LEARNING THE ROPES

Mrs. Annie Selan, a Warren Art League member, goes over some of the finer points of water color work with Job Corpsmen from the Blue Jay Center. Some 30 to 40 Corpsmen are taking courses from the Art League. Some show promise of becoming professionals at their work, according to League vice president Charles Pearson. (McGarry Photo)

Job Corpsmen Get Lessons In Artwork

Blue Jay Job Corpsmen are learning the fine art of — well, art.

The Corpsmen are studying under members of the Warren Art League on Wednesday evenings, learning work with water colors, oil painting, sketching, working in tempera, and modeling clay.

Warren Art League members have volunteered their time to train the Corpsmen for about three months. Involved in the program are Art League vice president Clarence Pearson, Annie Selan, Pat McGarry, Sandy Schreier, Lorraine Belz, and Dick Stein.

"Some of the boys are very talented," Pearson said. "Others are just beginners. A few are potentially professional artists and are planning on it as a career."

The program has from 30 to 40 Job Corpsmen participating.

Two Fires Saturday In Sheffield

Sheffield firemen are hoping they don't have another daylike last Saturday. They're still resting from two balze within nearly 12 hours of each other.

The volunteer firemen were pulled out of bed early in the morning for a house fire. In the afternoon, they were called out again for a garage fire.

A wood stove became overheated at 1:10 a.m. in the residence of Ted Moore on Bloss Hill near Mill st. in Sheffield and set the kitchen ablaze. Before local firemen and Clarendon firemen who assisted could subdue the fire it had broken through the ceiling and scorched the upstairs.

Chief Seaward French reported considerable smoke and water damage occurred and that a hole had been chopped in the floor to let out water.

He said many of Moore's possessions were lost and that total damage to the two-story structure would amount to about $8,000.

It is believed that the house was uninsured at the time.

Moore, who lives alone, is staying in a small house behind the burned dwelling.

Some 48 tired firemen and 5 fire trucks from Sheffield and Clarendon returned home at 4:45 a.m.

At 2 p.m. the fire whistle in Sheffield again blew and firemen were sent scurrying to Mayburg where a car caught fire in the garage of Kenneth Littlefield.

Before that fire was confined $1,300 damage was reported to the auto and building.

The car owner had been working on the car, preparing it for

Repub Voters Hold 3-1 Edge

Several persons arrived just under the wire as the 9 p.m. deadline for voter registrations was reached yesterday at the Warren County court house.

The regular staff in the registration office was augmented by additional helpers. When they finally closed the door, an unofficial tally of new voters now eligible to cast their ballots in the May 16 primary election showed Republican party with a three-to-one lead over Democrat party. For the past two years or so, the margin has been running about two-to-one in favor of the GOP.

Unofficial counts now show 370 new Republican voters and 126 Democrats in the county. In the change-over department also, the GOP maintained its lead with 20 Democrats switching to the Republican side of the ledger while six Republicans decided to vote Democratic.

There were six registered non-partisans who changed their registrations in favor of the GOP and six who preferred to remain in the neutral non-partisan corner. Three former non-partisan adherents indicated they would vote for the four Democrat candidates in May.

One Prohibitionist switched to Republican and one person is now registered as a member of the Conservative party.

Personnel in the voter registration office today start the task of checking their figures in order to compile a break-

SHOOT FOR 200 PINTS

Area Blood Bank Below Quota

Falling far under the assigned quota on the last two collections, Warren County's Chapter of the Red Cross will shoot for 200 pints of blood on the visit of the Bloodmobile to the county on Thursday, April 13.

Warren County is about 175 pints of blood under its quota for the fiscal blood collection year. Collections slumped badly on the last two visits. Only 67 pints were collected on the current month's visit while February yielded only 85 pints.

Each community is assigned an annual quota by Buffalo Regional Center and is expected to reach that goal to assure a return of blood required to meet local needs. Where the response falls off sharply, as has been the case in Warren during the past several months, the available supply for Warren General Hospital and other needs is automatically cut. In fact, according to Howard Lauffenburger, blood bank chairman here, the situation has made necessary supplementary donations on a few occasions to meet ordinary needs.

The April 13 visit of the bloodmobile will be the last one this year. The hospital is in a hurry to get the blood bank up and running again. A minimum of 200 donors must be reached to meet the quota.

Pennsy RR Merger Delayed by Order Of Supreme Court

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court delayed yesterday the merger of the Pennsylvania and New York Central Railroads until the fate of three smaller lines has been decided.

In a 5-to-4 decision the court ruled that the Interstate Commerce Commission had erred last April in approving the merger without first arranging to protect the Erie-Lackawanna, the Delaware & Hudson and the Boston & Maine railroads.

Justice Tom C. Clark noted in the majority opinion that the ICC has said that it can rule on the protective arrangements by June. He promised that the courts would review the ICC decisions on an expedited basis.

Thus only "a very short delay" will result from yesterday's decision to send the case back to the commission, Clark predicted.

Officials of the two merging railroads, who had warned previously that any delay by the Supreme Court might abort the merger, expressed disappointment at the court action but indicated that they hoped to consummate the merger after a relatively brief pause.

The merger, involving properties valued at $6 billion, would be the largest in railroad history. It had been under consideration for a decade and was finally agreed upon by the Pennsy and N.Y. Central in 1962.

It would create a giant system that would stretch on the east from Montreal through Boston to Norfolk, Va., and on the west from Mackinaw City, Mich., through Chicago to St. Louis.

Nine railroads and the Justice Department have opposed the merger in various court proceedings.

None of the parties before the Supreme Court objected to the combination in principle, and Justice Clark took pains to make clear that yesterday's ruling did not suggest that the merger was illegal. However, he added that a decision should await the ICC's rulings in two proceedings concerning the future of the three smaller lines.

Justice William O. Douglas supported the majority decision but said it did not go far enough. He said the ICC should be instructed to conduct a broad inquiry into the economics of the railroad industry, to determine if "predatory finance" by Wall Street bankers was responsible for so many railroad deficits.

Douglas said the commission should determine the effect of the possible domination of transportation in the east by a few rail cartels.

In statements from the bench, Douglas asked: "Who will sit at the switchboard of this great cartel? Where is the power? Who is the king? We don't know."

He said the commission had not adequately considered the effects of the mergers on the communities along the lines, but instead had considered "efficiency from the viewpoint of some banker on the 54th floor."

Space Shot Brings Multi-Colored Sky

Don't be surprised if the sky glows in Techni-color tonight. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration plans to paint the sky red, green and blue above the Eastern Seaboard at about 7 p.m. today.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Friday a Nike-Tomahawk rocket launched from Wallops Island, Va., will release barium vapors that may form colored clouds visible over much of the eastern seaboard for perhaps an hour.

The rocket will be launched at 6:58 p.m. It will release its payload at altitudes of 142 and 200 miles and again at 142 miles on its downward path.

The experiment is aimed at providing scientists with measurements on upper atmospheric electrical fields and wind motions.

American Aircraft Hit Near Haiphong

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Navy bombers darted to within five miles of the North Vietnamese port of Haiphong yesterday and attacked a site for Soviet-built missiles. They also struck at a fuel depot in the closest raids to the key port city in three weeks.

Headquarters said the camp escaped serious damage but one Vietnamese civilian was killed and one civilian was wounded.

In Operation Junction City, the massive U.S. drive in war zone C near the Cambodian frontier, a unit of the 173rd Airborne Brigade uncovered another enemy base camp 23 miles northeast of Tay Ninh City. The camp, consisting of 50 log-roofed bunkers, had been three-quarters destroyed by earlier air strikes, a U.S. spokesman said, and the rest of it was destroyed by the paratroopers.

B52 bombers of the Strategic Air Command on Guam staged two raids on enemy positions in South Vietnam last night and early today.

In a delayed report, U.S. headquarters said Marines operating in northernmost Quang Tri Province below the demilitarized zone killed 33 Communists Sunday. The Marines lost six killed and 28 wounded, headquarters said.

While Marines skirmished with North Vietnamese regulars along the demilitarized zone Sunday, a 16-man allied patrol was all but wiped out far to the south near the China coast.

About 120 Communists killed all but two members of the 101st Airborne's 2nd Battalion, which is 50 miles south of the big U.S. base at Da Nang.

Dead were eight U.S. Marines, a Navy corpsman and five South Vietnamese, who were on their way to a nearby village to conduct a medical clinic. One Marine, badly wounded, and a South Vietnamese militiaman escaped the slaughter.

Boy Rescued From Lake Erie

Erie, Pa. (AP) — The Coast Guard rescued a boy yesterday adrift on a chunk of ice on Lake Erie.

Authorities said Boyd Beresky, 11, of Erie; a brother and a friend built a raft out of driftwood.

The raft broke apart, and Beresky jumped onto a piece of ice. It drifted about 100 yards from shore.

The others ran for help. Beresky rode the ice for about 50 minutes before Coast Guardsmen in a row boat pulled him off the ice. He was not hurt.

IT'S A BOMB

An object described as a 'bomb' was unearthed Friday by Mike Olsen (left) and Brad Walter as they hiked along the Hull Hill side of Brokenstraw Creek near Youngsville. Brad fell over the bomb, which was more than half-buried. It was marked 'inert' and the boys have learned a lot about explosives dismantling and reassembling the many parts.

Sheffield Boy Faces 2 Charges

An 18-year-old Sheffield youth yesterday faced a second burglary charge filed by Chief Deputy Sheriff Richard E. Hegerty before Peace Justice Vincent Sprague.

Hegerty said that Randy Lee Shaw of Kane rd., Sheffield, arrested last week and charged with the burglary of a camp in the Ficus Hollow area in Sheffield township, is now being charged with burglaries of several other camps and at St. Michael's Recreation Center in Sheffield. The latter incident, Hegerty said, occurred Sept. 14 of 1966.

The deputy said that when Shaw was first apprehended he admitted entering only one camp, owned by John Simon of Erie, where he took a bolt-action shot gun, shells and a brown hunting jacket. These items were recovered by Hegerty at Shaw's residence.

While being held in the county jail in lieu of $500 bond, the accused, Hegerty said, admitted to the other burglaries of camps owned by men from Export, Pa. and the Cleveland, Ohio area.

According to police a variety of items were stolen, including a stuffed squirrel, shirts and gloves. At St. Michael's Hegerty said, a small amount of cash, a quantity of beer and some potato chips and popcorn were removed.

Jamestown Faces Roadway Changes

JAMESTOWN — City Council's highway committee last night met in a very lengthy session, discussing the matter of paving River st., repairs to a digester at the sewage treating plant, permits for a sanitary sewer and extension of three city streets.

The paving of one of the most controversial streets in the city of Jamestown, River st., came up for more discussion last night.

River st., which runs off Chandler st., is the site of several industrial plants including Norquist Products, Art Metal Incorporated and Proto Tool Company.

The entire highway committee agrees that the street is in need of extensive repairs but the legal problem regarding rights of way exist because the Erie Lackawanna Railroad owns a substantial portion of the street.

Efforts in the past to negotiate an agreement between the city and the railroad on the paving of the street have met with failure.

Jamestown In Brief

Frank Carnichael, manager of the Jamestown W. T. Grant store, is the new president of the Jamestown Area Retail Merchants Association. He succeeds Julian Wright and takes office Saturday.

Miss Jennifer Whitley, a junior at Southwestern Central High School, will attend Empire Girls State this summer as a representative of Herman Kent Unit, American Legion Auxiliary.

Seats are still available for the program phase of International Night, April 8 at Jamestown Community College cafeteria. The dinner is a sellout. There is no admission to the program which includes a Japanese Kempo demonstration, French singers, Spanish dancers and Vietnamese songs and dances.

Justice Abe Fortas asserted in the dissenting opinion that the majority decision "is a reversion to the days of judicial negation of government action in the economic sphere. We should be conservative and restrained. I think, when all we can say is no."

He said the courts should avoid second-guessing the economic decisions of an administrative agency.

"The courts may be the principal guardians of the liberties of the people," Fortas said. "They are not the chief administrators of its economic destiny."

Prime Rate Drops at Most Banks

(C) N.Y. Times News Service NEW YORK — The prime, or minimum, interest rate on business loans dropped to 5-1/2 per cent today at practically all of the nation's major banks.

The general move came exactly two months after the Chase Manhattan Bank of New York first reduced its prime rate to that level.

The reduction, which in effect required three separate initiatives by New York City banks to complete, was not taken without some reluctance.

R. E. McNeill, Jr., chairman of the Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. in New York summed up the sentiments of many bankers at the annual meeting of his stockholders yesterday.

Loan demand at the Manufacturers had been strong recently, McNeill said, and its total loans were still high. But he said that "to remain competitive" Manufacturers had had to join in reducing its basic loan charge to 5-1/2 per cent.

Action on a request for eleven permits to connect 3,250 linear feet of sanitary sewers in the Valley View subdivision was postponed because this would use up the entire 1967 allocation.

The committee also adjourned to executive session to discuss with Samuel Valone, Jamestown realtor, the extension of Lee, Arcade, and Cleatle streets as recommended by the city planning commission as a condition to accept the plans for the Westwood st. subdivision.

Jamestown Police Question Youths On School Damage

JAMESTOWN — Police reported that several youngsters have been questioned in connection with last Friday's extensive damage to Jefferson Junior High School.

According to city detectives questioning will continue but as yet no one has been charged, nor is anyone being held in connection with the vandalism that resulted in thousands of dollars worth of damage.

New York's Top Democrats Expect Goldberg to Resign

By WARREN WEAVER JR. (C) N.Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON — Leading Democrats here expect Arthur J. Goldberg to resign as United States ambassador to the United Nations sometime this summer to free himself to run for the Senate from New York State in 1968.

Party leaders who are pressing the lawyer and diplomat to challenge Sen. Jacob K. Javits next year believe Goldberg will leave his U.N. post before the next General Assembly convenes in early September.

These Democrats described Goldberg as "genuinely interested" in the prospect of running for the Senate on the Johnson - Humphrey ticket, despite the fact that he and Javits are old friends.

These expectations in Washington run counter to recent statements both public and private, made by Goldberg in New York. He said he was not interested in running for the Senate but expected to remain in federal service.

Goldberg backers here believe the ambassador is naturally reluctant to express interest in the Senate race so far in advance of the actual nomination and campaign. This has not discouraged their conviction that he will emerge as a candidate in due time.

The only other post regarded as a possible alternative to a Senate candidacy, Democratic sources report, would be a return by Goldberg to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Should President Johnson ask the ambassador to fill the vacancy that will be created by the resignation of Associate Justice Tom C. Clark within the next few months, Goldberg would almost certainly return to the court.

Clark has announced that he will step down by the end of the present court term in June, at least in part to avoid any possible conflict of interest over the fact that his son, Ramsey Clark, now heads the Justice Department as Attorney General.

The expectation here, however, is that the President will fill the prospective vacancy with another candidate. Replacing Clark with Goldberg would weaken the conservative bloc on the court more than Johnson wants to, his advisors report.

When Goldberg agreed to step down from the Supreme Court to go to the U.N., President Johnson reportedly indicated he would offer him a chance to return to the court when his tour of diplomatic duty was over, without making any commitment as to timing.

ARTHUR GOLDBERG

Goldberg was first publicly proposed as a 1968 Democratic Senate candidate two weeks ago by New York State Assemblyman Stanley Steingut, the Kings County Democratic leader and now the single most powerful county chairman of his party in the state.

Javits dismissed the idea of a Goldberg candidacy then as a "trial balloon" launched by "what is popularly known in New York City as a 'political boss.'"

He declined to comment further on the reports that the ambassador was planning to resign.

Supporters of the Goldberg candidacy have not made any formal move as yet to clear the idea with Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, the state's leading Democrat.

They are confident, however, that Kennedy could have no objection to the nomination of so notable a public servant and so old a friend of the Kennedys as Ambassador Goldberg.

One of the principal reasons Democratic leaders are seeking a strong candidate to oppose Javits next year is the likelihood that such an opponent could help the Johnson-Humphrey ticket carry New York State.

In a close national election, it is argued, the presence of a Senate nominee of Goldberg's stature on the Democratic slate could result in more votes for the top of the ticket than would the nomination of a man with little chance of countering Javits' well-tested vote-getting capacities.

Pennsy RR Merger Key to 'Revitalizing'

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Pennsylvania Railroad is counting on completion of its merger with the New York Central to provide resources for finishing a "revitalizing" job, Pennsy stockholders were told yesterday in the annual report.

Red Ships Shooting At Planes

WASHINGTON (AP)—Communist ships delivering war supplies to North Vietnam's major port, Haiphong, have fired at American planes on at least two occasions, the Pentagon acknowledged last night.

The port is virtually immune to U.S. attack because of restrictions on the military ordered by top civilian officials in Washington.

The U.S. planes were not hit, nor did they return the fire, the Defense Department said. The action occurred last year.

Earlier the Pentagon had declined to discuss the incidents, saying it could not go beyond congressional testimony given by Gen. John P. McConnell, Air Force chief of staff.

A short time after the appearance of an Associated Press story reporting the hostile fire from Haiphong, the Defense Department said it had continued to check reports and come up with "two reported instances."

On July 30, 1966, the pilots of two Navy F4 Phantom jets reported being fired upon by a "small Communist freighter," the Pentagon said.

"Early in August, U.S. aircraft in the area were again fired upon by a small freighter," the Pentagon said. "The aircraft were not hit nor did they return the fire in either instance."

Normally, U.S. planes are allowed to attack anti-aircraft and missile sites hindering missions over North Vietnam.

The Pentagon did not say whether the pilots had been prohibited from returning the fire. Nor did the Pentagon give the nationality of the ships or any details on the type of fire.

Almost from the outset of the Vietnam war the Joint Chiefs of Staff have recommended closing Haiphong harbor through bombing or mining operations. The administration, however, fears this might bring on direct Soviet or Red Chinese participation in the conflict. There is some apprehension, too, that ending or crippling Soviet aid would force Hanoi deeper under the influence of Peking.

Briefly Speaking

R. K. Cyphert of Tidoute is attending a meeting at the Instructional Materials Center at Edinboro to work on its annual budget. Cyphert represents the Warren County School Board.

Warren County corn field day will be observed at 1:30 p.m. Sunday, April 5, at Columbus Community House and again at 8 p.m. at the courthouse. Two state agronomy extension specialists will speak. James H. Eakin will discuss "Cross Fertilization Made Easy"; Baylor's topic is "Getting the Most From Your Corn Silage Acreage."

County agricultural officials tomorrow will attend a regional administrative conference at Oil City. The workshop covers latest developments in educational measures regarding extension programs.

Mrs. Ida May Osborn, 76, of RD 3, E. Law rd., North East, mother of Ray Osborn of Youngsville, died Sunday. Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow in Turner Funeral Home, North East.

At an Allegheny National Forest timber sale yesterday, two and a quarter million board feet of standing timber in the Bear Creek area of Marienville District, Allegheny National Forest was sold to Buehler Lumber Company of Ridgway, high bidder with $112,613.97. The timber includes black cherry, red oak, white ash, red maple and other hard wood species.

State Police of the Warren substation are investigating a stolen car incident which occurred sometime between 7 p.m. Sunday and 7:30 a.m. yesterday. According to police, a two-door medium blue Chevrolet coupe was stolen from Starbrick Motors on Route 6, west of Warren.

Borough firmen were called to the home of Gene Pring at 109 North Carver st. last night when a wire in a fuse box began smoldering. There was no damage.

Borough patrolman William H. Zerbe returned yesterday from a two-week stay in Florida.

Kane Man Said Fair After Pistol Wound

KANE — Joseph Dodge, 20, was listed in fair condition yesterday in Kane Community Hospital where he was admitted shortly before 6 a.m. Sunday with a bullet wound in the "stomach area."

Police said they received a telephone call from Dodge stating "I am going to shoot myself," and then they heard a shot. He was found in his apartment at the rear of W. Hemlock ave.

Shortly after he was admitted to the hospital doctors performed an emergency operation to remove the small calibre slug.

The young man had been under medical care until a few months ago, and had a pistol permit, according to police.

Warren Gymnasts Set Show in April

The Warren Area High School Circus, a bi-annual event at the school put on by the physical education department with the cooperation of other departments, is scheduled for three performances April 20, 21 and 22 at the high school gym.

Hal Miller, boy's physical director, heads the show. Assisting him are girl's director Mrs. Mary Creek and band director Daniel Harpster.

Elementary school children from schools in and around the borough will view a matinee April 20. The following two performances, both scheduled for 8 p.m., are open to the public.

Miller noted that this year's show will be highlighted by the use of various colored lighting effects and ultraviolet or "black" lights.

Among the many acts will be clowns, aerial events with rings and the trapeze, high bar rhythmic free dancing, trampoline and a circus parade. In keeping with the theme, cotton candy will be vended and a pink elephant will be on display.

Music will be provided by the school's "circus band," under the baton of Harpster.

Tickets go on sale later this week, with outlets in the borough to be announced. Tickets may also be purchased from anyone participating in the show. Miller noted that never in the history of the show, dating back to 1958, have tickets been sold at the door — the show is a complete sellout each time. The ticket price remains 50 cents, the same as 1965.

Members of the WAHS student council, under the direction of Helen McClure, will assist in setting up the elementary matinee. Proceeds of that show will go to that organization.

Starbrick Man Charged After Street Scuffle

A Starbrick man, David McCarrison, 24, posted bail and was released by borough police for a future hearing following a scuffle in front of 229½ Pennsylvania ave. West yesterday evening.

Police said that McCarrison and a girl became engaged in a heated discussion when officers were called to the scene.

In an ensuing scuffle, McCarrison threw the girl's pocketbook at patrolman Willard Zerbe and was then hauled off to jail by Zerbe and patrolmen Richard McWilliams and Edward Lindberg who assisted.

Patrolman Zerbe charged McCarrison with disorderly conduct and said the man would appear at a later date before Peace Justice Martha Lawson.

Woman Slightly Injured When Car Hits Bank

Injured slightly in a yesterday afternoon mishap on Route 27 in Pittsfield Twp. was Verna Fox, 51, of 112 Quaker rd., Warren.

State trooper William Dudinack of Warren substation reported that the Fox auto was traveling east on the highway, passed a truck and started to pull back in when the steering failed. After the brakes were applied the car skidded into a bank.

Warren General Hospital officials reported that the driver was admitted for observation and minor lacerations and was in satisfactory condition.

Damage to the car was estimated at $500.

GOP ANNOUNCEMENT
For COUNTY
COMMISSIONER
By Anthony Tomassoni

I want the people of Warren County to know that after due consideration, the full agreement of my family, and the encouragement of voters throughout all Warren County, I finally made my bid to run for County Commissioner. After observing carefully what has happened in the office in the past, the much publicized local problems, the eternal struggle that exists among the elected officials now in office who are always at odds with each other, never thinking of the betterment of Warren County, never available when needed, and never agreeing on any single issue, I say it is about time the people of the county do something about it. The number of individuals who have announced their candidacy for commissioner indicates that there can be no better time to change than now, and a change is imperative. As a duly elected councilman from the 6th Ward, I have found the time to listen and to be available to all taxpayers regardless of party, not only in the 6th Ward, but in and around Warren County. I feel that when one has been entrusted an office to represent the county, the least he can do is to be there to listen to every complaint, situation or problem that may exist. An elected official should give careful thought to each individual and then do something about it. In other words, I wish to serve. I want to do something for the senior citizen and correct the tax structure. After all, how far can we go to aid the poor, to encourage new industry, to do something about our present zoning laws that benefit only a few, and to improve our transportation. I want to back up all worthwhile organizations, to appear proudly in any veterans affairs or groups already organized, and any other worthwhile group that may need advice or a helping hand.

Due to the wholesale change in this office in the past few years, all rules and procedures have been made to suit the individual with no regard whatsoever to the welfare and betterment of our county. Little progress has been made in relief cases. Borough and county tax leagues have been abandoned in most areas. Hardship cases are worse now than before. I still say this is a full time job. I am well aware of the problems that exist. We must try a new beginning. Let us begin. Let us not stay in this state of apathy and complacency. Let us not be tempted by one dissenting vote on the airport authority that would enrich some other town. Let us concentrate strictly on Warren County. You the taxpayer can change all that has happened in the past. Let us think of the future. Let us be honest with ourselves. I offer you sincerity to serve as a public servant, available to all. I will use good common sense in the position, and will cooperate with all borough and county officers with one thought always in mind — will it help the people of Warren County.

Vote the No. 1 position on the ballot!

TO CUT DOWN JUNK MAIL, Mail List Business Comes Under Government Scrutiny

By JOSEPH P. FRIED

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
NEW YORK — If you are a newlywed, your name and address are worth 1.25 cents. If you are a wealthy widow, they are worth 4 cents.

If you bought a surgical truss from a Kansas City mail order house, your name and address are worth 1.5 cents. If you breed pedigreed swine, they are worth 5.7 cents.

These are some of the going prices in a little known, but pervasive, booming business that is facing its first possibility of government scrutiny.

Under a bill being studied by the Post Office and Civil Service committees of both houses of Congress, the selling and leasing of mailing lists—the backbone of the $2.4 billion direct mail industry—would be brought under the federal eye.

Records would have to be furnished upon Post Office Department request, of who bought or rented each list within the last five years.

The list users — the third-class-mail advertisers who rent lists — would also be obligated to show what they sent out. List brokers, who bring together the owners and advertisers, would have to register with the department.

The measure — strongly opposed by many mail list entrepreneurs — is being sponsored by Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., as a "constitutionally feasible and relatively burdenless" method of curbing smut peddling through the mail.

Previous attempts to stem mail-borne erotica have been aimed at list users only.

Zablocki, agreeing that his bill is less than what many smut-fighters want, nevertheless believes it would "help officials gain information that would be useful in obtaining convictions under existing obscenity laws."

The rarely described mail list business, growing increasingly efficient in the computer age, is believed to reap hundreds of millions of dollars in annual profits.

Four or five thousand list owners rent or sell more than 10,000 mailing lists compiled as a by-product of their main business, according to the 1967 directory of mailing lists published by the M.W. Lads Company of New York.

In addition, three dozen companies specialize in compiling lists from sources ranging from automobile registration statistics to hospital clerks who sell names of maternity patients. One company, R. L. Polk of Detroit, which buys auto registration lists from all 50 states, was in the news last week when a Connecticut car owner officially protested the state's sale of his name as an invasion of his privacy.

Finally, there are the three dozen brokers, based mostly in New York, who get a 20 per cent commission each time they arrange for a list rental.

The variety of lists is endless, but the lists of most concern to Zablocki supporters are those used by the salesmen of erotica.

"And that's where the bill is tilting at windmills," Henry Hoke Jr., publisher of The Reporter of Direct Mail Advertising, a monthly trade magazine said.

"Brokers don't get involved in pornography. The starting pornographer builds his own mailing list and the bill wouldn't get at this fringe area."

Lewis Kleid, a broker who has been in direct mail for 30 years, said: "It would be creating a mountain of red tape to get at a molehill."

Supporters of the bill respond that lists of interest to a smut-seller are openly available, with five alone in the Lads Directory under "sex book buyers." They dispute industry statements that advertisers using such lists are carefully screened.

Seek Repeal

KUWAIT (AP)—Pressure is increasing to repeal the 1964 ban on liquor in Kuwait. Many of those who campaigned for the prohibition now call the ban impractical and point out that an estimated 100 persons have died from drinking eau de cologne.

Eliminate Fire Hazards Now

It appears that spring is finally with us. If so, it's the time to start cleaning up around the lawn, taking down storm windows, readying the lawn mower for the days ahead, and so forth.

It is also a good time to spring into action against fire hazards. Whether your home stays free from dangerous and destructive fire this year may very well depend on what steps you take right now.

Most of the common causes of fire can be removed if you clean out any stacks of newspapers and magazines, discarded clothing, mattresses, old furniture and lamp shades, draperies—all the clutter that collects in attics, basements and closets.

--Do the same clean-up job in the home workshop, too --shavings, scraps, oily rags, old paints should go.

--Don't forget about the trash accumulating in the garage, and get rid of the dead grass and brush around and near the house and other buildings.

--Repair defective electrical cords and plugs, check over appliances and call a competent electrician if they need attention.

--Have your furnace, chimney and stoves inspected and cleaned.

Fire damage lurks in these spots.

Low Cost College Loans — II

You are the son or daughter of a middle-income family graduating from high school with average grades this summer and slated for admission to an accredited college in September. Your family's adjusted annual income is around $12,000 and you must get outside financial help to continue your education.

In yesterday's column, you read that your best answer today is a long-term low-cost loan under the program of federally-guaranteed loans authorized by the Higher Education Act of 1965. You now know that you can borrow up to $1,000 at 6 per cent interest for each academic year of full-time study to a total of $5,000. Because your family's adjusted annual income is under $15,000, you also know that the federal government will pay the full 6 per cent interest while you're in college and will pay 3 per cent of this interest when you start repaying the loan nine months after you graduate. Here are more important details.

Q. Where are these guaranteed loans available?

A. As of now, about 5,000 commercial banks with about 4,000 branches, roughly 9,000 bank offices, located in all 50 states are participating in the loan program.

Q. What's the best way to apply?

A. You, the student, to whom the loan will be made, should write to or go to the financial office of your college and ask for the names and locations of banks or other financial institutions near your home which are participating in the loan program. Then go to one (or more) of these institutions and ask the appropriate officer to help you complete the necessary forms.

Q. Does a bank or other institution have to lend you the money?

A. It does not. Whether you obtain a loan and in what total, will depend on the lending institution and the student loan guarantee agency and the amount of

Also, about 400 mutual savings banks, savings and loan associations and credit unions are authorized to make the loans. Directly cooperating with the program are about 800 colleges.

Most of the lending institutions are concentrated along the East and West Coasts, in New England and the Midwest. The weakest loan areas are in the South and Rocky Mountain States.

Q. What about students at nursing schools?

A. You may get these loans if you are enrolled in a collegiate school of nursing leading to a baccalaureate or graduate degree. You also may borrow if you are attending a two-year college program in nursing leading to an associate or equivalent degree.

Q. Of course, even if you get the maximum loans authorized, your education costs will top what you borrow and you and/or your family will have to supplement the funds.

But this is the best program devised so far for the middle-income family and the non-scholarship student, and right now a Treasury task force is studying it to see how it can be improved.

Q. Whatever changes may be ahead, the time for you to get all your spade-work done is NOW — as early as possible before the 1967-68 academic year begins in September.

Q. All his mother wanted to hear, of course, was that he was making a mint and eating high on the hog, but having committed his letters to print, Al felt he'd be destroying his literary reputation unless he poured it on her about subjects that book reviewers think a real artist ought to talk about to his old mom. His mother, naturally, assumes he has become unhinged.

This is known in medicine as the Lord Chesterfield reaction. You, as a father, know as well as I do that all Chesterfield's son wanted from the old boy was a few lines ending with, "Enclosed find check for the amount you requested." Instead, Chesterfield battered him with volumes of advice on how to get on in the world, which was obviously meant to show posterity what a keen bird old Chesterfield himself was.

We can assume as a matter of course that the boy thought the old man, at best, daft. We can also assume that after the first few letters, he probably quit reading, and after the first few dozen, probably even quit opening them.

At that, Chesterfield was a more entertaining writer of letters for the public than most men who do it. When is the last time you read one of those letters Lyndon Johnson writes to the Congress?

Now that you're stuck with writing letters to posterity, you're going to have problems. Take your letter to Norman Kraska in which you review "The Balcony" by Jean Genet. A splendid letter because it was written without posterity peeping over your shoulder.

Not expecting any literary critics to intercept your mail, you could easily write, "If this is show business, I'm glad I'm getting out."

But suppose you were writing to Kraska in your new manifestation as Groucho, man of letters, vulnerable to assault by Jean-Paul Sartre. Knowing that dismissal of a Genet work as a "turkey" (your word) is an offense punishable by character assassination, you would probably take 6,000 words to say it and end up sounding like Marcel Proust.

Or take, "Last night I saw a broad we had both pursued during moments of our more active lives." Marvelous. But are you still going to be able to come up with a line as free-spirited as that now that you know your mail is likely to wind up on shelves between Lord Chesterfield and Madame de Sevigne? There's the frail germ of a joke there, but I'll leave the punch line to you. These days you can never be sure your mail isn't being delivered direct to the printer.

On the other hand there is the (flat — not graduated) income tax, oftentimes proposed for Pennsylvania in the past, as being a "better" type of general or broad-based tax. In almost every sense but one this is true — the psychological sense.

The income tax is regarded as a more efficient tax and a less costly tax — but it is a personal shot-in-the-pocket levy with far greater impact than a continuing, dribbling sales tax.

There is for example Pennsylvania's sales tax. Generally this is regarded as having the least psychological onus of any general tax program. In other words, everyone pays it in bits and dribbles all the time.

Groucho: Man of Letters

WASHINGTON -- Dear Groucho,

"The Groucho Letters" is (are?) a delight for all us FBI types who like to read other people's mail, but you're probably going to find, next time you face a piece of stationery, that publication was a mistake.

Once you start letting letters get into print, you tend to get confused when you sit down to write a note to Aunt Hannah. The problem is whether you're writing for Aunt Hannah's benefit or for the 300,000 people who are going to gobble up your next book of letters.

One of those moderately notorious characters in which Washington abounds lives down the street here, and a few years ago he agreed to give some university out west all his correspondence, on the theory that the documentation of American history would be incomplete without a record of his notes to the milkman.

The trouble is that ever since he committed himself to writing letters to posterity, he hasn't been able to write a line. Some times when you drop in at his place he'll have thirty or forty quarts of milk in the kitchen because he hasn't been able to rephrase "No Milk Today" with the felicity that will satisfy Edmund Wilson when his correspondence is published.

He's an extreme case, admittedly, but not the worst example of what happens to people when they realize their letters are being mailed over the heads of their correspondents for ultimate delivery to the New York review of books. The worst is the sort of thing that happened to a certain novelist, formerly of Postum Gap, Tenn., now of New York, who hit it big with his first book and, after yielding to the inevitable pressures to publish his letters, began worrying about his literary reputation.

His mother passed through Washington not long ago and dropped by the office. "How's Al?" I asked her. "He writes all the time but he don't say," she said. "It's gotten so I hate to see the mailman coming up the Hollow on account of I know it's going to be another one of those eight-page letters from Al telling me about how wrong some fellow named Elliot was in comparing Henry James and Turgenev."

All his mother wanted to hear, of course, was that he was making a mint and eating high on the hog, but having committed his letters to print, Al felt he'd be destroying his literary reputation unless he poured it on her about subjects that book reviewers think a real artist ought to talk about to his old mom. Compulsive Builder Frei

(Editor's Note: Drew Pearson, recently returned from South America, today reports on his interview with the president of Chile.)

SANTIAGO — President Eduardo Frei Montalva of Chile is probably the most compulsive builder in Latin America, and when you ask him about his building his eyes sparkle and his hands gesture expressively.

Frei is building not merely houses but a nation. Today Chile is pushing, promoting, building more than at any other time in its history, and President Frei, with his Christian Democratic party, has been responsible, setting an example for all Latin America.

I talked to Frei in his office looking out over the Plaza de la Constitución. Over his heavy mahogany desk hung a portrait of Bernardo O'Higgins, the George Washington of Chile. On the desk were a few, working papers. Deep-set window sills led out to a balcony overlooking the square. And on a little telephone table was a miniature telephone keyboard identical with that of LBJ's.

President Frei has a lot in common with LBJ, as I discovered in talking with him. They are both ex-school teachers, both strong for education, both pushers for agriculture, land conservation and housing. Both, furthermore, are tall and thin.

"I was hoping to see President Johnson before April 15 when the Summit Conference opens," President Frei told me. "I know we would have had a lot in common. I hope to see him later in the year on a state visit."

"Tell me about your revolution without a firing squad," I asked, referring to Frei's sweeping social and economic reforms.

"Our chief accomplishment is education," President Frei replied, speaking English slowly and carefully. "The UNESCO in Paris cited us for having 96 per cent literacy, higher I think than any other country in the world. 'Revolution doesn't have to take the form of bloodshed and disorder. Building schools is the spirit of our revolution.'"

"In January and February," Frei continued, referring to the summer vacation in South America, "university students have gone south to build our schools. The government has furnished the window frames, the lumber, the locks, but the students have got the community started and they have done the rest."

"We have also increased students in our secondary schools by 40 per cent, and we have increased the basic term of education from six to eight years. Next year we will extend it to nine years."

"And we have served a million breakfasts in the public schools, together with 500,000 lunches," said President Frei, "in part thanks to food from the United States."

JOSEPH ALSOP

Explaining the Irrational

BONG SON, BINH DINH PROVINCE, VIETNAM — Something has already been said, in Guam and elsewhere, about the false picture of the war that is given to the Hanoi leaders by their front commanders. This is an immensely important point which needs exact documentation.

Consider, for example, the little, rather remote base which the First Air Cavalry Division calls Landing Zone Bird. (In the First Air Cavalry's jargon, every base is a Landing Zone; Washington, no doubt, would be LZ Lyndon.) When attacked some time ago, Landing Zone Bird was held by two artillery companies and two platoons of riflemen.

The attackers comprised no less than two full battalions of the 22nd Regiment of the Third North Vietnamese Division, a much harried outfit which is based in this area. They achieved partial surprise, penetrating the perimeter, but they were finally driven off, leaving 60 of their dead behind in the LZ.

The First Air Cavalry almost unceasingly pursues the Third North Vietnamese Division with the object, already two-thirds attained, of freeing this province from the pressure of the enemy's big units. A document was captured in one of the more recent phases.

It was the report of the commanding officer of the 22nd Regiment to his divisional headquarters on the surprise attack on LZ Bird. The report revealed that the real toll taken by the few LZ defenders was altogether different from the published "body count," reaching 216 North Vietnamese soldiers killed, plus 160 wounded.

And just as our policy makers based their judgment on the grossly misleading "body count," the Hanoi policy makers unquestionably based their judgment on the regimental C.O.'s even more misleading report.

There is an element of high comedy in this, in the new American Army ("All tiny

The president of Chile went on to talk about the next goal of the Christian Democratic revolution — housing.

"Here we have not done as well as we should," he said frankly. "We plan to build 60,000 houses every year, but the cost of education may be too great. The past administration built 20,000 houses a year, and we have built, between 1964-1966, 45,000 houses each year. Probably we will build 55,000 this year. I am not sure. We hope to do better."

"Along with this housing program we have brought in water, lighting, built communal buildings which have laundries and libraries, and we have installed playgrounds and marketing facilities. Housing projects never had these before."

"The third goal of our revolution is health. We have organized 900 mobile health centers; we have trained nurses; and we have given, in 1966, 190 million liters of milk to mothers. In the last administration there was given only 88 million liters of milk. We have pledged 240 million for 1967."

"The fourth point in our program is agrarian reform," said the president, "and this is why I could not come to the United States. That was the punishment given to me, that I could not see President Johnson — all because of land reform."

President Frei referred to the fact that his bitterest opposition comes from the landed aristocracy in the so-called Chilean "establishment." Frei is the first president of Chile in history to take on the establishment. In neighboring Peru, where a dozen or so families own 80 per cent of the land, there has been only a small start toward land reform; but, in Chile, President Frei is in dead earnest.

"The land reform bill just passed the senate yesterday. Maybe I'll have to veto one part of it, but it will go into effect soon."

"We have another problem in connection with the land," he said, "erosion. Frankly, erosion is a greater calamity than earthquakes. This is because Chile is long and narrow, and the rivers rush down from the mountains directly into the sea. This rush of water through the centuries has been wearing our land away."

"So we have been planting trees. The last administration planted 25 million trees a year, but two days after I took office we started a program of 125 million trees the first year and 200 million the next year."

"I told the army, 'You must help,' and the army was enthusiastic. So were the students and the local communities. 'We will give you the trees,' I said. 'You can plant them.'"

"Lady Bird would be pleased," I remarked. "Someday I hope she can come to Chile and see what we are doing." So spoke the dynamic president of Chile regarding his "revolution without a firing squad."

More on President Frei's goals and problems will follow shortly.

He pushed the button again, and what appeared to be a big game hunter walked in. She was wearing an Australian hat, a bush jacket, leather pants, heavy wool stockings and Chukka boots.

"I call this 'Dawn Over Manatoba.' You can wear it at home when you're having guests in."

"Mr. Alfonso, I don't mean to sound critical, but these clothes certainly don't do much for a woman's figure."

"Of course not. That's the Red Guard influence. I studied the pictures of the Communist Chinese Red Guards day after day, and then it came to me. You couldn't tell the women from the men. I don't know how the Chinese ever thought of it."

At that moment what I took to be a model walked in wearing a black leather raincoat, tall brown boots and a red helmet with a number on it.

"What's that?" I asked. "I'm not sure," he said nervously. "We're either having a fire or previewing my latest wedding dress."

So have a long series of subsequent enemy attempts been repulsed. On this very special front, meanwhile, the Americans killed in the last year have not reached 700. Furthermore, an enemy breakthrough, out of the high-jungle on the frontier, would merely bring the North Vietnamese to open ground where American firepower would come close to destroying the NVA units to the last man.

The whole effort is irrational, but the Cambodia "front" commander, the North Vietnamese Gen. Manh, has undoubtedly told Hanoi that the U.S. losses in his "front" area have been 14,000 or 30,000 or some such crazy total of killed and wounded.

Thus, the Hanoi policy makers are encouraged to persist in an inherently lunatic effort, and above all they are encouraged to go on basing all their decisions on their prime and central hope that the United States may get tired and quit.

ART BUCHWALD

The Red Guards Are Coming

WASHINGTON — If anyone has any doubts that the country has gone daft, I would like to refer them to all the furor that was raised last week in the newspapers and magazines over a 17-year-old Cockney model named Twiggy.

Twiggy, who appears to be the latest thing in sex symbols, looks like a boy. The only reason you know she's a girl is that her hair is cut much shorter than most 17-year-old boys'.

Fashion designers may deny it, but I believe there is a conspiracy under way to destroy the female body as we know it. The object of the designers this year seems to be to make all women look like Al Capone, Ernest Hemingway or Gunga Din.

This is not merely conjecture on my part. I visited the workshop of a fashion designer the other day and interviewed him about what he was doing with women's fashions this year.

As I was ushered in, Monsieur Alfonso came up to me. "That's lovely, dear," he said, straightening out the handkerchief in my pocket. "And the cigar is such a charming touch."

"Mr. Alfonso," his secretary cried, "this is not one of your models. He is a newspaper man."

"Forgive me," Alfonso begged. "I designed a lady's suit just like the one you're wearing, for tea time."

"Okay," I said, "anyone can make a mistake. Now, about the women's clothes that you people have been designing this year. Why are you making women look like men?"

"We're not making women look like men," Alfonso said. "We're liberating the female body from all the traditional garments that have made woman a second-class citizen for so many years."

Just then a model came in. She was wearing a fur hat, quilted jacket and pants, black boots and two bandoliers loaded with ammunition over each shoulder. "I call this dress 'Partisan,' it can either be worn to cocktails or for a small dinner party. I've designed a handbag that goes with it that is shaped like a machine gun."

"It sure looks sexy," I said. "He pushed a button, and another model walked in. She was dressed like an Army M.P., including the silver helmet."

"This one is called 'Distinguished Service.' You can wear it to lunch with or without the billy club. Jeannette, do I detect a bulge in front? Naughty, naughty, you know we're not showing bulges this year."

"Why aren't you showing bulges this year?" I demanded. "Men like women with bulges."

"But, my dear," he said, "bulges are so unsightly."

He pushed the button again, and what appeared to be a big game hunter walked in. She was wearing an Australian hat, a bush jacket, leather pants, heavy wool stockings and Chukka boots.

"I call this 'Dawn Over Manatoba.' You can wear it at home when you're having guests in."

ARRISBURG — Pennsylvania's highway users (and in one form or another that embraces just about everyone in the Keystone State these days) would do well to take a good, hard look at the ambitious highway building proposed the other day by the State Highway Commission.

Few will dispute the "merits" of the tremendous program as outlined by the commission: better highways, new highways, modernized highways, etc.

The "merits" in the case are one thing; the "means" of accomplishing the meritorious goal quite another. It is on this latter point that a good, hard look perhaps is in order.

The commission has proposed spending $1.5 billion during fiscal 1971-73 (of which amount the state share would be around $950 million) — all of which is in addition to the six-year $3.4 billion Pennsylvania is embarked upon (now in its second year).

The prime question of course is just "how" such an ambitious program is to be accomplished — financially speaking.

A month ago in this column I was referring to Pennsylvania's highway program, we said, in pointing to the Motor License Fund as the kingly pin for financing highway work in Pennsylvania.

"It is in this Motor License Fund that a tax increase may well be the order of the day... Take the entire Motor License Fund, which this fiscal year is running around $700 million, break it down and the biggest revenue contributor is — liquid fuels taxes which represent 38 percent of the entire budget."

"Motor licenses and fees comprise another 16 percent. Either of these are two prime categories in which the revenue tab for Pennsylvania may well rise — if highway programming expenditures as currently projected are to be met."

Interestingly perhaps, last week the commission gave tentative approval to financing the near-billion dollars in state share needed via increases in the motor licenses and fees category — doubling the fee for drivers' licenses from $2 to $4, increasing auto registration fees from $10 to $20, increase the diesel fuel tax, etc.

An increase in the gasoline tax was not included in the commission's proposals — which is interesting in itself, for this reason:

Inasmuch as it is the Legislature that will do any taxing or increasing of taxes — not the State Highway Commission — what the commission recommends has no statutory status. It is merely an "opinion," a recommendation.

The simple fact is that when it comes down to actually acting, that is, the initiating of a tax program, lawmakers' oftentimes are prone to look at such items in an entirely different light.

Legislators are the ones held responsible by (their) voters for a tax increase — thus the question invariably arises as to which or what tax program carries the least onus.

There is for example Pennsylvania's sales tax. Generally this is regarded as having the least psychological onus of any general tax program. In other words, everyone pays it in bits and dribbles all the time.

Steele-ing The Sports Scene

Roger Ramjet Personified

LSD-users and glue-sniffers of the world, move over!

This month's issue of TRUE magazine features a story that tells of "The Pill That Could Wreck Sport." Written by Tom Ecker, former Western Kentucky track coach and now the National Coach of Sweden, the story hints that, among other things, an anabolic hormone may be responsible for several recent record-breaking performances in the cinder sport.

It's Roger Ramjet, all-around good guy and devil-may-care flying fool, in real life! Roger, if you're not familiar with the television cartoon character, is the chap that fights evil by popping into his mouth a pill that "gives me the strength of 20 atom bombs for the period of 20 seconds." He's "Mr. Terrific" in a form that even adults can enjoy.

Now it appears that Ramjet, Terrific and Captain Nice are really Neal Steinhauer, Harold Connolly and Bill Toomey in disguise.

Steinhauer, who broke the world indoor shot put mark in January with a heave of 66 feet six and 3/4 inches, took anabolic hormone pills every day for one month during the fall of 1964 and again in late 1965 and has since added ten feet to his puts.

Admittedly, he also lifted heavy weights and worked pretty hard at perfecting his form during the same period.

And Connolly, who has been King of the Hammer since Eisenhower was a corporal, but has fallen off in the last few years, set a new world mark in his specialty on May 29, 1965 after failing to place in either the 1960 or 1964 Olympics.

He had been taking anabolic hormones.

Toomey, a relative unknown a few years ago, moved from 16th to first on the all-time decathlon list in one season, all the while taking the "pill."

The track and field set is divided not only on the positive effects of the pill, but also on their legality and on the possibility of harmful side effects.

Most of the exponents of the new wonder drug, however, caution against indiscriminate use. They are available only by doctor's prescription and may not be for everyone.

Young athletes, especially, are warned of their use.

A Sour Grape Pill?

Then, again, it may all be sour grapes.

The same cry of "foul" went up when a little-known Marine corporal named John Uelses soared over 16 feet on the fiber glass pole.

And if "the pill" doesn't come under the same category as improved equipment, how about the high-protein foods, pills and powders that champion weight lifters have used for years? Or vitamins?

Or honey and sugar for instant energy? At least Steinhauer, Connolly and Toomey have admitted that they indulge. How many others won't admit it? And how many athletes will start using the pill because of the TRUE article?

Just so there's no misunderstanding, let us caution again of the pill's use by young athletes. The men who we cited above as "users" are physically and mentally mature and the pill may definitely be harmful to growing boys.

The pill is a derivative of a male hormone and should not be used by the female of the species. The gals, it seems, would be in danger of losing their feminine characteristics by its use.

There's no proof, but a lot of speculation, what Ecker calls "locker talk," about the case of the five Eastern Europe female track and field stars who refused to submit to a physical examination prior to the 1966 European Championship.

The five women, who had collectively won nine individual European Championship titles and seven Olympic gold medals, included Tamara and Irina Press of Russia and Rumania's Iolanda Balas, who had raised the world high-jump record 14 times since 1956.

We might caution against one other use of the pill in the same category. Maybe the "Hawks" of Washington will start slipping it to the "Doves."

From the looks of it, this pill could cause as much furor as "THE pill!"

STEELE SHAVINGS—Check your television guide this week for the weekend showing of the NCAA wrestling finals on ABC's "Wide World of Sports." There's a good chance you'll see the Dragon grapplers and coaches in the background.

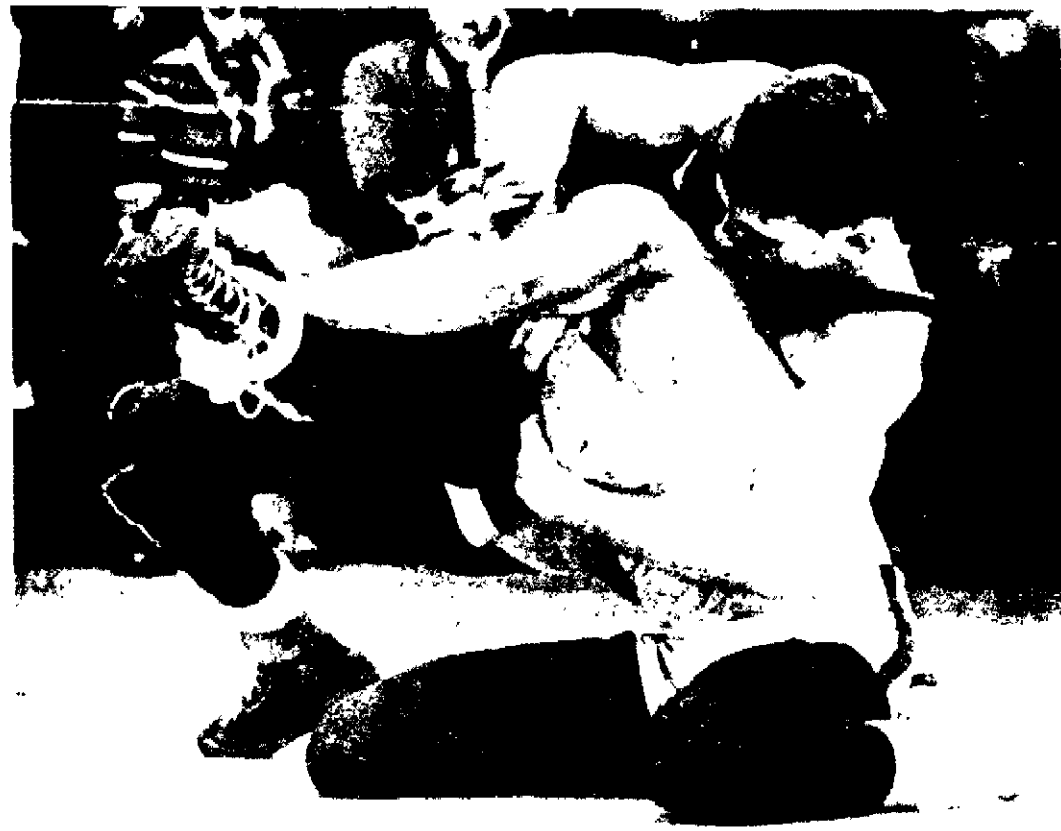

The network used two color cameras at the event and one was pointed directly at that section of the stands that included the local group. Without seeing a preview, our only hint would be to pay strict attention to the shots that DO NOT include a full shot of the on-floor scoreboard in the background.

To qualify that, there were scoreboards at both sides of the mat, but one should be fully visible on the shot across the mat as it was in the exact opposite corner. The other scoreboard was more in the center of the floor and should not be as easily read. That's the camera shot to watch.

Well, anyway, pay attention.

Honeymoon May Be Over For Surprising Knicks

LOSE CAZZIE RUSSELL TO ARMY

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — New York spent 22 games wearing down the Boston Celtics and now there might not be enough Knicks left to take advantage of it.

The Knicks lengthened their season by beating the Celtics 123-112 in Boston Sunday in the Eastern Division semifinal playoffs of the National Basketball Association, but the victory shortened their roster.

Cazzie Russell, whose 24 points played a major part in the triumph, left yesterday for six months reserve duty in the Army and will be lost for tonight's rematch at Madison Square Garden.

The Celtics, who had beaten New York 21 straight times before Sunday, lead the best-of-5 series 2-1 and ruled the heavy favorite when the Knicks had Russell. Without him, New York is given little chance.

It had been Coach Dick McGuire's intention to wear down the aging Celtics by substituting freely and pressing on defense. That strategy plus playing two games within 24 hours, apparently worked against the Celtics. But Boston now gets a day rest and New York might be too tired itself without Russell.

The Knicks have played the series without Dave Stallworth, sidelined by a heart attack, and Dick Barnett, out with an injury, leaving only eight men who see regular action. Russell's loss left them with seven.

Bill Russell, player-coach of the Celtics, closed the dressing room door for 15 minutes after Sunday's humiliating defeat before 10,738 fans in Boston Garden and talked to his club.

The New York victory delayed the start of the East's final playoff, the winner meeting Philadelphia in a best-of-7 set. The 76ers disposed of Cincinnati in four games.

The West starts its final division playoff Thursday when San Francisco hosts the St. Louis Hawks. The teams play again on the West Coast Saturday and then travel to St. Louis for games April 5 and 8. The remaining contests, if necessary, will be in San Francisco April 10, in St. Louis April 12 and in San Francisco April 14.

The Warriors, who won the division in regular season play, gained the playoff's final round by sweeping their best-of-5 series against Los Angeles with a 122-115 victory Sunday.

Courts Deny Appeal By Convicted Fixer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former basketball star Jack Molinas, convicted in a game fixing scandal, was denied a hearing by the Supreme Court yesterday on his claim that he was unconstitutionally trapped with a listening device.

The concealed electronic recorder was given Dennis Reed, a Bowling Green college player, by the New York County district attorney's office in 1962 when Reed went to Molinas' office "in the guise of consulting him as his attorney," Molinas claimed.

Molinas, subsequently disbarred, was then practicing law. He said Reed elicited incriminating statements from him while carrying the listening device.

Molinas claimed his constitutional protection against unreasonable search and seizure and self-incrimination were violated.

The high court turned down Molinas by an 8-1 vote. Justice William O. Douglas said his appeal should have been heard.

The onetime Columbia University and National Basketball Association player was convicted in New York in 1963 on conspiracy, bribing Reed and inducing perjury. He was sentenced to 10 to 15 years in prison. The term subsequently was reduced to seven to 12 1/2 years.

Last March, Judge Harold P. Burke of the U.S. District Court in Rochester, N.Y., ruled that admission of the taped statement into evidence did not infringe on Molinas' constitutional rights.

Burke rejected Molinas' application for a writ of habeas corpus and said Molinas had instructed Reed to reveal nothing about the basketball fixes and if called before a grand jury to lie about the crimes.

Because Molinas was not then under arrest, Burke said, "The prosecuting authorities were free to question him either directly or they could use an agent such as Reed."

Burke's ruling was upheld in January by the U.S. Circuit Court in New York City.

Mrs. King Wins Title in Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Billie Jean King, of Long Beach, Calif., beat Maria Bueno of Brazil in three sets yesterday to take the singles title of the South African Tennis Championships.

In a match full of errors and lost services, the American won 7-5, 5-7, 6-2.

Mrs. King also defeated Miss Bueno in three sets in the final at Wimbledon last year.

In the first set, Miss Bueno dropped her service five times, and Mrs. King lost hers four times. Altogether in the match, Miss Bueno lost nine services and Mrs. King seven.

South Africa's likely Davis Cup pair, Bob Hewitt and Fred McMillan, trounced last year's Wimbledon finalists, Owen Davidson and Bill Bowrey of Australia 6-1, 6-4, 6-4 to capture the men's doubles title.

Hawks Rookie Gets Called to Service

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Hawks announced yesterday that rookie Dick Snyder has been called to active duty with his National Guard unit and will miss the remainder of the National Basketball Association playoffs.

Snyder, who will be stationed at Ft. Bragg, N.C., has been ordered to report Thursday for six months active duty.

Red Hockey Team Cops Fifth Title

VIENNA (AP) — Russia won its fifth straight world Hockey title yesterday by overtaking Canada 2-1 in their showdown battle decided on Vyacheslav Starshinov's goal midway through the final period.

Both teams entered the game unbeaten in five contests, although the Canadians had been tied. The victory gave the Russians 12 points, three more than Canada, with one game remaining for each club. The Canadians now must beat Sweden for second place.

Canada scored first in the tense struggle that had the sell-out crowd of 13,000 screaming from start to finish, but the Russians tied it on a freak goal and then Starshinov added the clincher.

Sweden tied Czechoslovakia 5-5 in another Group A contest.

The United States was idle, recovering from numerous injuries before making its bid for fourth place in its finale against West Germany today.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Ace right-hander pitcher Juan Marichal signed a $100,000, one-year contract with the San Francisco Giants yesterday ending major league baseball's final holdout.

Agreement came after a conference with club president Horace Stoneham which lasted less than 10 minutes.

Marichal apparently agreed to the figure offered him 10 days ago but turned down at that time when he sought $110,000.

"Other players deserved raises and I was determined not to go above $100,000," Stoneham said.

highest for a Giant, topped only by Willie Mays who gets $125,000.

As the only pitcher to win 20 or more games during the past four years, Marichal posted a 25-8 record in 1963; 21-8 in '64; 22-13 in '65 and 25-6 last season. His pay scale went $40,000, $50,000, $62,000 and $75,000.

Originally this season, the Giants offered $90,000 and then boosted the bid as Juan reduced his demands.

"I'm very happy and ready to go to work," Marichal said. "I feel I'm in condition and ready to work right now."

The hurler added: "I'm not ready to pitch yet, it won't take me long."

Marichal said he had been working out in his native Dominican Republic and was in fairly good shape. He slated a workout immediately and is expected to pitch in an exhibition game before the weekend.

The Giants were in Palm Springs yesterday for an exhibition game but Marichal was scheduled to be with the squad today for the game against the Chicago Cubs at Phoenix.

A year ago, the star hurler didn't report until March 22 yet pitched a three-hitter on opening day and won 10 straight.

Hank Sauer, a scout with the Giants who is helping with coaching duties this spring, declared, "Juan's in fine shape. Don't worry about him. He'll be ready to go five innings by the end of the week."

Marichal originally asked $125,000, the salary reported paid the now-retired Sandy Koufax. The San Francisco star also wanted more than the salary paid the Dodgers' Don Drysdale, reported more than $100,000 even though he took a cut after last season's 13-16 record.

With the $100,000 pact, Marichal gets a $25,000 raise and a total of $60,000 more than three years ago.

Juan's holdout was staged from his home in Santo Domingo. He arrived in Phoenix early Monday at the urging of Manager Herman Franks and then conferred with Stoneham.

Nicklaus Doubtful Ryder Team Member

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus' 33rd-place finish in the Pensacola Open probably cost him a place on the U. S. Ryder Cup team, it now seems certain that the matches with the British champions will be played with the world's No. 1 golf professional on the sidelines.

"I don't see how I can possibly make it now. The odds are too heavily weighed against it," the Masters and British Open champion said yesterday. "I am prepared for a week's rest and practice before shooting for his third Masters crown April 5-8."

The last Ryder Cup standings showed Nicklaus in 13th place on a list in which 10 qualify for the team.

Having decided to skip the Greensboro tournament this week, Nicklaus needed a combination of circumstances to squeeze onto the team, for which he is eligible for the first time since turning pro.

By winning the Masters, Jack could pick up 70 points and vault ahead of Johnny Pott, in 10th place, granting that Pott, who is playing very good golf, fails to pick up points by finishing in the top 10 at either Greensboro or Augusta.

Pott has 308,50 points, Nicklaus 240,34. Big Jack could be edged out also by either Dave Marr, in 11th place with 283,46 points, or Bob Goalby, in 12th with 281,92.

The Masters tournament is the cutoff, although the matches at the Champions Club in Houston against the British champions are slated in October.

"It's possible the matches will be played without any of the major champions," Nicklaus said. "That would be a little silly, wouldn't it?"

The Ryder Cup dates were changed from early June to early October, but the period of qualification was not extended.

Under the rules, only PGA full members can compete. A golfer must serve a five-year apprenticeship before getting his card and qualifying for the Ryder Cup and other PGA privileges.

Jack turned pro in 1961. He attended a special PGA school to expedite his membership, which became effective last June. While the other pros have had a year to build up Ryder Cup points — awarded on the basis of tournament finishes — Jack has had to try to cram it all into one year.

U.S. Open champion Bill Casper leads the Ryder Cup standings with 829,09 points, followed by Arnold Palmer, Gay Brewer, Doug Sanders, Gene Littler, Julius Boros, Al Geiberger, Gardner Dickinson, Bobby Nichols and Pott.

Nicklaus, accepting the disappointing situation philosophically, said he planned to go to Augusta tomorrow for three days of practice, return to his Columbus home for the weekend and go back to Augusta Tuesday.

Pro Soccer Loops Here Talk Merger

PIITTSBURGH (AP)—The rival National Professional Soccer League and the United Soccer Association have been discussing a possible merger, it was learned yesterday.

In a statement issued here, the commissioners of the two new leagues said they have been conducting "a dialogue on mutual problems" for some time.

The statement made no mention of a merger, but a spokesman for the Pittsburgh Phantoms of the National League said this was the eventual aim of the talks.

In their statement, commissioners Ken Macker of the national league and Dick Walsh of the United Association said, "Each league knows the problems of the other. We felt the best way to work things out was to do it on our own. From the discussions we have had, it is obvious that this was the correct course."

Both the 10-team national league and the 12-team united association are scheduled to open play this spring, marking the debut of organized, big-time soccer in the United States.

The national league has a television contract with the Columbia Broadcasting System, but is not sanctioned by the international governing body of the sport. The united association has been sanctioned, but has no television contract.

Both leagues have stocked their teams with foreign players, sometimes hiring away virtually entire squads from overseas.

The national league has a television contract with the Columbia Broadcasting System, but is not sanctioned by the international governing body of the sport. The united association has been sanctioned, but has no television contract.

Both leagues have stocked their teams with foreign players, sometimes hiring away virtually entire squads from overseas.

The Phantoms spokesman said club officials taking part in the talks were Peter H. Boock of Pittsburgh and Joe O'Neil of San Francisco, both of the national league, and Cade Paul of Cleveland, Roy Hofheinz of Houston and Earl Foreman of Washington, representing the united association.

Victory Boosts Gay Brewer on Golf Cash List

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Gay Brewer's victory in the Pensacola Open boosted him from fourth to third spot in the Professional Golfers Association list of money winners yesterday.

Brewer trails Julius Boros and Arnold Palmer in winnings in official tournaments, the basis used by the PGA to rate its top 10.

1, Julius Boros $47,250, $1,765,23; 2, Arnold Palmer $45,298,21, $7,729,09; 3, Gay Brewer $43,553,021,30; 4, Doug Sanders $34,641,50; 5, Dan Sikes $25,806,48, $515,50, $26,321,99; 6, Bob Goalby $20,883,33, $2,140,59, $23,023,92; 7, Ken Sill $15,189,00, $912,09, $16,101,69; 8, George Knudson $14,617,50, $3,148,50, $17,766,00; 9, Chuck Courtney $13,570,84, $2,813,34, $16,384,18; 10, Bill Collins $12,670,96, $4,662,67, $17,333,63.

County Old-Timers Plan Scholarships

The Warren County Old-Timers Athletic Association is starting to roll now and the group will elect officers and directors at a meeting slated for Sunday at 2:30 p.m. at the American Legion.

Membership in the new organization has been set at $1 per year and Bob Harrison, a spokesman for the association announced last night that all proceeds will be divided equally among the county high schools for accumulation to a scholarship fund. Harrison said that it was the organization's desire that the students themselves nominate a deserving candidate for the scholarships.

All former area athletes 35-year old and over who have participated in any sport are eligible to join. The group plans an annual reunion. Membership cards will be available soon from members.

A coupon for prospective members will appear in the TMO sports section later this week.

The association will also discuss a charter and future events at Sunday's meeting.

Some of the "Old-Timers" already associated with the group include Frank Gerardi, Ray Peterson, Frank Cruickshank, Fred Lawton, Leo Rosetti, Bill Paris, John Castagnino, Ray Collins and Paul Kujawa.

City Loop's Opener Set For May 22

The first game in the City Softball League has been tentatively set for May 22.

Radio station WRRN will broadcast the opener as it did last year. Participating in the game will probably be last year's league champion, Warren Beverage against who ever is determined to be their strongest opposition.

A group of qualified umpires have been selected and will work every game.

The first game will start following opening ceremonies which have yet to be announced.

The next meeting will be Tuesday, April 3, at 8:30 p.m. at the American Legion Hall.

Five home runs powered the Atlanta Braves to a 6-1 victory over Boston and 17 hits carried the Chicago White Sox past the New York Yankees 12-7 as sluggers prevailed against spotty pitching in yesterday's exhibition baseball games.

Clete Boyer hit a two-run homer for the Braves and Felipe Alou, Dennis Menke, Mack Jones and Rico Carty connected with the bases empty. Four of the homers — including three in the sixth inning — were hit off ex-Brave Hank Fischer.

Triples by Ken Berry and Tom McCraw delivered three of Chicago's five runs off Mel Stottlemyre in the eighth inning as the White Sox outscored the Yankees in a 31-hit duel. New York's Elston Howard hit the game's only homer.

Warren Hot Stove Meeting Thursday

The Warren Borough Hot Stove league will hold a very important meeting Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. at the Holy Redeemer Church basement.

A spokesman for the league said that it is imperative that there be a better turnout for this meeting than the last one. This meeting will be used to reorganize the league.

Anybody, parents or interested parties, are urged to attend the meeting. Especially wanted are persons who have managed a team or been a ward chairman.

The league needs people who want to accept the responsibility of being a ward chairman or a manager. Also needed are people to check out the equipment and uniforms. The spokesman said that there is a lot of work to be done and not much time to do it.

A person doesn't have to know the game to be of assistance. The spokesman said that administrative people are also in demand. Generally speaking, if you want to see 800 boys have fun this summer, get out and pitch in.

No one will be refused admittance to the meeting. There is a lot of room in the meeting hall. If you have a friend who isn't doing anything, bring him along. But the ball has to start rolling THURSDAY.

Seventh Annual Sports Car Rally at Olean

OLEAN, N.Y. — The Allegheny Valley Sports Car Association announced Sunday completion of plans for the Seventh Annual Southern Tier Tour Sports Car Rally. This rally recognized as one of the East's leading sports car events will start and end here Saturday, May 6, 1967.

Once again this year the Quaker State Oil Refining Corporation of Oil City will co-sponsor this event which last year attracted nearly 100 teams from eight states and Canada. A new feature this year will be a special class for cars not equipped with the usual rally equipment.

Jan Bralts of Friendship, N.Y., a veteran rallyist of many years experience both in this country and in Europe, is this year's rallymaster. The 250 mile course will once again use the scenic and rugged hills of Western N.Y. and Pennsylvania.

Entry information and further details may be obtained from the rally secretary, Mrs. Miranda Bralts, 20 Maple ave., Friendship, N.Y.

Eyes of Texas on Clay, Giving Him Short 'Stay'

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay won't have to report here April 11 for Army induction because he's now a Texan.

Clay had his case transferred to Houston, his new home, and gave himself more time to continue his fight against military service.

"The Houston board will set a new date for Clay's call-up," a spokesman for Board 47 in Louisville, said yesterday, "but that's all. They have no other jurisdiction in the case."

The spokesman said the action was taken under a provision available to any potential draftee working in another state. Full board approval is not required.

At Houston, a draft board spokesman said Clay probably would receive his induction notice sometime in April but no earlier than April 11. He said the indefinite delay involved only the transfer of official records from Kentucky to Texas.

The spokesman said that when the papers are received the new call will be issued for Clay telling him when and where to report.

Clay and his lawyers appeared before the Houston board last Friday at which time the transfer request was granted, the spokesman said.

Clay established his change of residence through an affidavit signed by a Houston attorney. A supporting affidavit from the champion's attorney, Hayden Covington, accompanied the transfer request.

A hearing is scheduled tomorrow on a suit challenging the original induction order because of alleged discrimination by Board 47. Covington contended there were no Negroes on the Louisville board, but the board said it has one Negro member.

Covington also has asked the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals at Cincinnati for a permanent injunction to block the induction. The case is pending.

In Chicago, Clay's manager, Herbert Muhammad, said all negotiations for fights are at a standstill pending Clay's new induction notice.

"We still have a fight with Thad Spencer tentatively scheduled in July for San Francisco," the manager said. "We could try to move that up pending just what develops on Muhammad Ali's draft status. But all fights outside the United States definitely are out."

Changes in Bowling Tournament Leaders

Ron Sisson and Art Carlson moved into a tie for first place in the singles event of the Warren Bowling Association tournament being held at Bowladrome with totals of 687 it was announced last night.

They removed Denny Callahan who had a 684 total. The rest of the singles list remains unchanged.

There were no changes in the doubles event as the first eight places remained unchanged.

The only change in the team event came in the seventh spot where Paulmar placed ahead of F.O.E. 313 with a 2980 total.

There will be an all events trophy awarded, but none of the figures will be released until everyone has completed their bowling.

Bookies Favor Bucs, Orioles

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Pittsburgh is a 2-1 favorite to win the National League baseball pennant, Las Vegas bookmakers said yesterday but they report more money is being bet on Atlanta than all the other teams in the league.

Atlanta opened as a 10-1 shot but has been trimmed to 5-1.

In the American League, Baltimore is an 8-5 favorite. Minnesota is 2 1/2 to 1.

Europe's Champ Here for Fight

NEW YORK (AP) — Nino Benvenuti, the European middleweight boxing champion, arrived yesterday from Italy, brimming with confidence that he will defeat world champion Emile Griffith April 17 in Madison Square Garden.

Speaking through an interpreter, the handsome 28-year-old fighter praised Griffith as a "very good champion" but said that he was quite confident that he could relieve him of his title.

The fighter, who has a record of 71 victories and one defeat, including 41 knockouts, said he would like to end the fight by a knockout.

Francisco recently rebounded him for 1967 with a boost in pay. His pitching has been partly responsible for the team's showing in the pennant race.

Despite his comparative youth, Dave has been managing for 10 years, virtually all of it in the lower minors. Throughout his apprenticeship he had only one goal, the big leagues. Every thought, every action, was designed to get him there.

"I started managing when I was only 23," he said, jaw jutting defiantly. "By then I realized I'd never make the big time as a player but might as a manager even though the odds were overwhelmingly against me. I suppose I am naturally aggressive but I had so many young players with me every year that I felt obliged to instill aggressiveness in them and teach them to fight for everything."

The steely glint faded from his eyes and they began to twinkle. He shifted the cud of chewing tobacco and grinned.

"I had more fights and fewer victories," he admitted sheepishly. "than any man in baseball. But at least I was teaching something important to the kids under me. Three fights stand out in my mind."

"One was at Bakersfield in 1959. I was in the middle of a free-for-all when John Edwards—the same guy who's now the Red Sox catcher—grabbed me and pinioned my arms. I couldn't move. I could only look. And I saw a strange sight. Behind home plate was the screen that tilted down. Sliding down that screen was a tall player from the other team. Edwards had thrown him up there before he grabbed me."

"A year later I was player-manager of Palatka and I was trapped in a rundown. I thought Bill Bryan had tagged me unnecessarily hard. So I swung at him, not a very smart move because he outweighed me by 40 pounds. Then he swung at me. See this scar over my left eye. It took six stitches. That's where Bryan hit me."

"The next night I'm walking toward the clubhouse and I see Bryan with four of his brothers, all bigger than he is. 'Oh, hell!' I said to myself, knowing that he didn't need reinforcements to beat me up. But there was no trouble. They nodded hello and let me walk past them."

"A couple of years later I was coaching at third in front of the other team's dugout when I started a fight. Everybody on the other team had a belt at me before my team arrived to rescue me. That taught me something else; never start a fight on the other fellow's side of the field."

"It was all worth it, I guess, because I'm here in the big time. And I aim to stay. I said to the manager last year that I never asked for this job. I knew they'd have to come to me. If they hadn't, I'd have said, 'Thanks for the opportunity' and departed. It still will be my farewell speech but I have no intention of being required to say it."

The Man Who Came to Dinner

(c) N.Y. Times News Service

TAMPA, Fla. — The memory of the trip is still sharp in the mind of Dave Bristol of the Reds, the youngest manager in the big leagues at the age of 13. It is etched so deeply that it nearly solidifies his iron determination not to return to it or anything like it.

"It was in 1958," he said, snapping out the words like a drill sergeant. "I was managing the Geneva club from upstate New York in the Cincinnati chain and all the farm teams trained in Laredo, Tex. When it was time to go north to open the season, we traveled by bus. It wasn't a comfortable leave-the-driving-to-us express."

"Instead, we were given a municipal bus with uncushioned straightback seats, the kind used for local stops. We had to take all our luggage, uniforms and other gear with us. We even brought along the bases because we were starting a new franchise and couldn't be sure they even had bases."

"We got somewhere in Oklahoma for our first overnight stay and got just beyond St. Louis on the second night. That's when I discovered we were running out of money. There was barely enough left to eat with—if we had no more stopovers. So we drove straight through to Geneva, riding that crummy bus night and day. Life in the minor leagues may be a rich experience but to a baseball man there is only one place to be, the big leagues. I intend to take advantage of my opportunity."

Because Bristol never came close to the majors as a player and had only a brief exposure as a manager after succeeding Don Heffner last July, he was a total stranger to the vast majority of the baseball experts who tour the Grapefruit Circuit. Yet no manager has hit them with more resounding impact.

"What a guy that Bristol is," they say after meeting him for the first time. "I can't remember being so impressed by a new manager. No wonder his players are crazy about him."

"Dave manages the Reds like Bear Bryant coaches the Alabama football team," says Pete Rose. "He hustles and makes us hustle. He believes in himself so much that he not only has us ready to run through brick walls for him but he's restored our confidence in ourselves."

Despite his comparative youth, Dave has been managing for 10 years, virtually all of it in the lower minors. Throughout his apprenticeship he had only one goal, the big leagues. Every thought, every action, was designed to get him there.

Humphrey Begins European Visits

(c) N.Y. Times News Service GENEVA — Vice President Hubert Humphrey began his two-week tour of Western Europe yesterday by emphasizing the Johnson Administration's strong desire to achieve agreements here on the prohibition of the further spread of nuclear weapons and on a general reduction of tariffs through the Kennedy Round Negotiations.

After a day of consultations with the chief American negotiators, Humphrey stressed the "high priority" the United States attaches to the success of the negotiations on a non-proliferation treaty.

He added that the Kennedy Round was "one of the most important international negotiations in this decade" and that "we place great emphasis on its successful conclusion."

Humphrey, who arrived from Washington early yesterday, said that he would visit seven countries "in my own capacity as Vice President." He reiterated that he was not bringing any message from President Johnson, and was "not trying to act as a negotiator."

His aim, he said, is to "learn on the spot from our ambassadors" and to "look and listen to our friends in Europe."

Picketing Of Dairies Ineffective

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Picketing of dairies by the National Farmers Organization (NFO) in Pennsylvania had no noticeable effect on milk deliveries yesterday.

Clair Flynn, president of the Erie County NFO, said members would maintain round-the-clock picketing "until we get the job done."

But Casimir Domrowski of the Teamsters' Erie local said the NFO was not recognized as a labor union by the Teamsters, and the truckers crossed the lines.

The NFO has been withholding milk from the market in 25 states for the past 11 days in an effort to force prices up.

"All we are asking is a two-cent a quart increase," said Flynn.

Pickets appeared at plants in Erie, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and other cities. Most of the picketing was in the northwest corner of the state.

There were no reports of any incidents.

U. S. Silk King Disappears in Malay Jungles

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — James Thompson, the American "silk king" who wove a fortune from the threads of beautiful Thai silk, has disappeared in the jungles of north-west Malaysia.

Thompson, 61, of Bangkok, was visiting friends in the Cameron Highland resort area of Malaysia Sunday when he went for a stroll in the jungle. He has not been seen since.

More than 100 police, soldiers and civilian volunteers searched throughout the night without a trace of the millionaire who is one of the best-known Americans in Southeast Asia.

Viet Constitution Starts Saturday

By JOHN LENGEL SAIGON (AP) — The Armed Forces Council announced yesterday South Vietnam's new constitution will go into effect Saturday and presidential elections will be held Sept. 1. Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, the real power in the council, is expected to be a candidate.

Group Sets Studies Of Reform

HARRISBURG (AP) — A Modern Constitution for Pa., Inc., which calls itself a nonpartisan research and information organization announced plans yesterday for a series of educational forums across the state to inform the voters on proposed constitutional questions.

The group, which for the past two years has pressed for wholesale revision of the 93-year-old constitution, listed 10 areas in which hearings were planned. No dates were announced.

Pennsylvanians voting in the May primary election will decide the fate of a call for a constitutional convention, seven article-by-article amendments and a bond issue for land and water conservation.

The Modern Constitution group said the hearings, to be conducted along the lines of a town meeting, would include brief explanations of the proposals, with the public encouraged to ask questions and join in the discussion.

Tentatively listed as sites for the hearings were Harrisburg, Altoona, Johnstown, Pittsburgh, Erie, State College, Williamsport, York and Allentown-Bethlehem-Easton area and the Scranton-Wilkes-Barre area.

Tanker Spills Oil On British Beaches

LAND'S END, England (AP) — The American tanker Torrey Canyon, split on the Seven Stones reef and written off as the most costly loss in merchant marine history, spilled out more of her oil cargo yesterday, further polluting British beaches and posing a problem that may take years to solve.

The 61,283-ton ship lay in two sections seven miles off the southwest tip of England. Her aft section gradually slipped beneath the waves as the sea tore her from the reef.

Oil flowed from her punctured tanks in a steady brown stream. Its stench penetrated planes hundreds of feet above the wreck.

The Torrey Canyon, owned by a subsidiary of Union Oil of California and flying the Liberian flag, broke her back Sunday night during a final effort by Dutch salvage tugs to wrest her from the rocks. She ran aground 10 days ago.

The escaping oil has stained beaches along 100 miles of the coast of north and west Cornwall and was reported creeping around Lizard Point toward the Channel coast of Devon and southern England, menacing another 100 miles of coastline.

As of late yesterday, about half the vessel's original 120,000-ton cargo remained in her tanks. The total cargo is equivalent to about 35 million gallons.

that saw warfare ebb after a Sunday of vigorous fighting stretching from the emerald green mountains along the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam to the Mekong River delta south of Saigon.

After a day-long meeting, the council announced that elections to the Senate also will be held Sept. 1. Voting for the lower house of the National Assembly was set for Oct. 1.

The constitution, written by the 117-member Constituent Assembly, will restore true civilian rule for the first time since the military overthrow of President Ngo Dinh Diem Nov. 1, 1963. Diem was killed.

There have been brief periods of civilian government since then, but the military was the actual power. The last civilian government was kicked out by the military Jan. 27, 1965, after three months in office.

The present military regime has been in office since June 20, 1965, with Premier Ky, an air force marshal, as head of the government, and Maj. Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu as head of state.

Thieu and Ky are considered leading possibilities for the presidency. In order to run, they would have to shed their military rank because the constitution says the president must be a civilian.

A communique said the military council would "accept in full the draft constitution of the Constituent Assembly voted on March 18, 1967, and will promulgate this said constitution on April 1, 1967." This was a month earlier than expected.

More Spaniards

MADRID (AP) — Spain is expected to have a population of 38 million by 1970, according to projections of the National Institute of Statistics. The 1960 census put the population at 30.9 million.

Tanker Spills Oil On British Beaches

Small West Country ports such as Helston and Falmouth put improvised booms across harbor mouths in an attempt to keep the oil from oyster beds and inshore fisheries.

Seven Royal Navy ships and a score of trawlers shadowed the larger oil slicks as westerly winds pushed them slowly toward shore. They used detergent sprays in an attempt to break up the worst masses.

The government admitted the task is practically hopeless. To be sure of success 10 tons of detergent is needed for every ton of oil.

On shore, 1,500 troops from the strategic reserve were thrown in to join 1,000 firemen fighting the battle of the beaches. Their job was to help clear oil from the golden sands which, with the threatened fishing, are Cornwall's livelihood. Fire trucks hosed down beaches after the troops worked with scrapers and detergents.

Heavy seas during the night ripped the Torrey Canyon apart, tearing and twisting her steel sheets like so much paper.

New Rabies Vaccine Is Nearer

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Scientists working with mice, guinea pigs and other animals have obtained hopeful results in their search for better and safer vaccines to treat human rabies — a rare but horrible disease.

"I certainly am encouraged over the outlook that in two or three years there will be an improved vaccine on the market," said Dr. R.E. Dierks, who heads a research program at the 85-acre rabies control laboratory of the U.S. Public Health Service.

Dierks said that even as research progresses rabies may become a greater threat to humans because of a rising rabies incidence in wildlife and the growing number of Americans taking part in outdoor activities, such as camping and hiking.

Dierks is practically impossible and post-exposure treatments now used are painful, sometimes dangerous and not always effective.

The only reported case of human rabies in 1966 was a boy in South Dakota. He was attacked by a rabid skunk while camping out in his backyard. The animal crawled into the boy's sleeping bag.

"The child received the ideal treatment," Dierks said. That included treating the severe bites, administering antirabies serum and 21 dosages of vaccine. On the 24th day, the boy developed symptoms of the disease and died about one week later.

RFK Discounts Candidacy; Will Stay Out of Primaries

(c) N.Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., yesterday made it known that he has "no plans" to enter any presidential primary next year and would take all necessary steps to keep his name off primary ballots in New Hampshire, Oregon, and Nebraska.

This was Kennedy's strongest assurance to date that he would

Grand Valley Woman Still Listed Missing

City and state police of the Titusville area are looking for a 37-year-old RD 1, Grand Valley woman who has been missing since Friday. State police of the Warren substation were alerted by teletype.

Police said Mrs. Geraldine Marie Bureigh was last seen when she came to Titusville to shop at the Riverside Market.

She is described as being five feet, one-inch tall, weighing between 110 and 115 pounds and having dark brown and gray hair. When last seen she was wearing a black dress, gold sweater and full-length coat.

Mrs. Bureigh has relatives in Titusville, Oil City, Erie and Buffalo, N.Y.

not contest the democratic presidential nomination in 1968 with President Johnson.

In response to queries from newsmen, Frank Mankiewicz, the senator's press secretary, said Kennedy would submit sworn statements, if necessary, to keep his name off primary ballots in Oregon and Nebraska.

The election laws of both states are almost identical. They provide that a candidate's name may be placed on the ballot either at the discretion of the Secretary of State or through petition. It is up to the candidates named to withdraw from the running, if they wish, by submitting affidavits stating they are not seeking the presidency.

Mankiewicz said that the senator would also seek to remove his name from the New Hampshire ballot if it should be placed there by petition. "The senator has no plans to enter any primary," the press secretary declared.

This left open, however, the possibility of a write in campaign in New Hampshire, which Kennedy may not be able to stop if it materializes.

In 1964, Kennedy, then serving as attorney general, received 25,861 write in votes as a vice presidential nominee despite a public statement attempting to "discourage" any efforts on his behalf. Johnson received 29,635 write ins for president, and the thin margin separating the two was a source of political embarrassment to both.

Asked whether Kennedy would again publicly repudiate a write in drive if one should develop next year, Mankiewicz said he was certain the senator would. Any other action, he said, would be "inconsistent" not only with the senator's 1964 stand and his attitudes toward the Nebraska, Oregon and New Hampshire primaries, but also with his "repeated statements" that he is not a candidate.

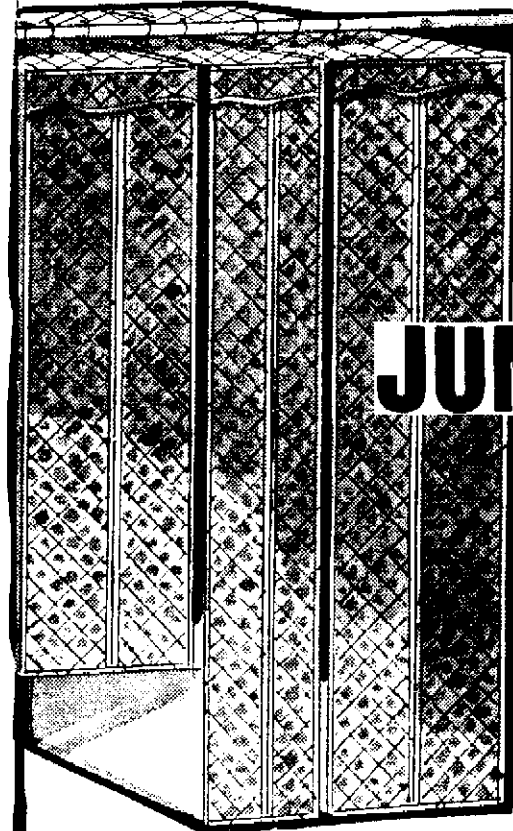

Kennedy has been saying for the last year that he fully intends to support a Johnson-Humphrey ticket in 1968, despite persistent speculation that he might become a contender.

Unwelcome Customers

OSLO, Norway (AP) — A squad of police was called out in Oslo to round up four elk that invaded one of the city's shopping districts. Two of the elk entered shops, police said, knocked over display cases and terrified customers. Police chased the animals back to the forest.

Warren High Senior Gets Pilot's License

Larry Zetterlind, Warren Area High School senior, is a licensed pilot.
Larry received his license yesterday from a Federal Aviation Agency examiner at Dunkirk, N.Y.
He first started flying during a summer vacation when he was 12 years old. On his 16th birthday he soloed a plane. Sixteen is the earliest legal age for solo flights.

Larry's instructors were Bud Maier of Warren and Frank Luci of Corry Aviation. He is a member of Warren Aviation Club.
This fall, Larry will enter Parks College of Aeronautical Technology in East St. Louis, Ill., heading for a bachelor's degree in maintenance engineering.

DISCUSS TOURISM

McAmbley, Dilks Speak on Tourism

Joseph McAmbley, president Warren County Development Association, and Robert Dilks, chairman of the steering committee of the new Kinzua Dam Vacation Bureau, yesterday informed Rotarians of the accomplishments of the association and the new bureau.
McAmbley reviewed the chief accomplishments during 1966, which were in the fields of industrial development and tourist promotion. The Struthers Scientific and International Corp. was cited as one project successfully completed. The formation of the new Kinzua Dam Vacation Bureau under Charles Tranter was the major tourist promotion development. The group was represented at the Cleveland Sportsmen's Show, Canadian Sportsmen's Show and other events. McAmbley calls the tourist business Warren County's "silent industry."

Dilks described the chief assets of the area as being its rural character and its natural beauty, with hunting, fishing and camping unparalleled. The new lake backing up behind the Kinzua Dam will provide water sports. The resources in lodging, camping and travel trailer sites, eating accommodations, and other factors in the growing tourist influx are being studied. The vacation bureau was formed, he says, to meet the need for a centralized coordinating group for tourism.

Monday's meeting was Rotary's annual day for guests of college men and women and those in the armed forces. Among guests were: Jan Schneck, daughter of LeRoy Schneck, sophomore at Adrian College, Adrian, Mich; Bob and Mike Rice, sons of Dr. David Rice (Bob is sophomore and Mike is a senior, both at Westminster); Jean McAmbley, daughter of Joseph McAmbley and her classmate Donna LaTiere, both freshmen at American University in Washington, D.C.; Lynn Glass and Doug Glass, both attending Michigan State University, Lansing, Mich.; the daughter and son of Shirl S. Glass; Charles Frantz sons David, a lieutenant in the U.S. Navy, aboard the U.S. Lexington, and Charles Frantz, a sophomore at West Virginia Wesleyan, Buckhannon, W. Va.

Warren High School Seniors introduced as Rotary guests were Christine Williams and Joan Curtis.

Other guests were Earl Jones and James Mazzu.

South Vietnamese Soldiers Kill 142 in Tense Fighting

(C) N.Y. Times New Service
SAIGON -- South Vietnamese army troops killed 142 enemy in sharp fighting Sunday in the Mekong River Delta, a Saigon government military spokesman said yesterday.
Government losses were light, fewer than 5 per cent of the roughly 1,000 men committed. But seven United States helicopters supporting the operations were shot down.
A U.S. military spokesman said three of the helicopters were destroyed and that two Americans were killed, 14 were wounded and two others were reported missing.
The government spokesman said the Saigon troops ran into an estimated enemy battalion of 300 to 500 men at 9 a.m. Sunday 62 miles southwest of Saigon. The government soldiers captured 36 weapons, a field electricity generator, a telephone set and "a great amount of ammunition."
In North Vietnam Sunday, Col. Robert R. Scott, commander of the 355th Tactical Fighter Wing, based at Takhli, Thailand, shot down his first MIG during a raid on the Sontay army supply area 23 miles west of Hanoi.
Eight MIG-17 jets attacked Scott and several other Air Force pilots and a ninth MIG flew nearby.
"It was a most successful mission," Scott said. "It was kind of an Easter egg to the wing. The bombing was real good, then the MIGs decided to come up and do battle. We managed to nail one as we pulled off the target. The MIG-17 made a mistake, got in the wrong position, and we nailed him."
The MIG shot down Sunday brought to 38 the number destroyed by American pilots over North Vietnam.
On a bomb run near the Demilitarized Zone separating North and South Vietnam, ground fire brought down an Air Force F-105.

denied, Noyd's complaint said, he was notified by Lt. Gen. Thomas S. Moorman, academy superintendent, that he would be reassigned April 1 to the 27th Tactical Fighter Wing at Cannon Air Force Base in Clovis, N.M.
The order didn't say whether he was being assigned as a student or as an instructor, Noyd said, but in either case he objected to the assignment on grounds of religious beliefs — specifically "humanism."
Noyd, a career officer, said Cannon Air Force Base was a replacement training center for "assignees to Southeast Asia, and specifically to combat in Vietnam." The 27th is an F-100 unit.
"The war in Vietnam is unjust and immoral, and if ordered to do so, I shall refuse to fight in that war. . . ." Noyd declared.
"The basis of my faith, beliefs and values is Humanism. This essentially means respect and love for man, faith in his inherent goodness and perfectibility, and confidence in his capability to ameliorate some of the ills of the human condition."

Officer Sues Air Force

(C) N.Y. Times News Service
DENVER -- A U.S. Air Force Academy officer filed suit in Denver Federal Court yesterday for classification as a conscientious objector to the Vietnam war.
Capt. Dale E. Noyd, 33, said both his offered resignation from the Air Force and his request for non-combat duty in lieu of resignation were denied by Air Force officials.
His suit asked that the Air Force be compelled by court order either to accept the resignation "for the good of the Air Force" or to assign him to some non-combat duties.
Shortly after his requests through regular channels were

HELP! HELP! is the cry of the distaff side of the Conewango Valley Country Club committee now preparing for the Golden Anniversary of the club. Their appeal is for old snapshots and all kinds of nostalgic memorabilia of years gone by. . . . They have had but a limited response. April 22nd is to be a night of gay dining and dancing enriched by a background of fifty years in which CVCC has played an important part in the social life of the area. Now, in those fifty years, many pictures must have been taken; some spur of the moment, others posed more formally, depending, I suppose, on the solemnity of the occasion. Tucked away somewhere there must also be some treasured dance cards, dinner menus, saved perhaps by another generation, from an era when dining was a much more elegantly time consuming and serious business than it is today; a lovely hat, which served well as Cupid's weapon and greatly assisted in the gentle and womanly art of flirtation. Well, that's just a starter. . . . At the meeting recently, at the home of Mrs. Gordon Kay in Youngville, the committee members discussed the matter and decided another appeal was in order. . . . "Please", they ask, "go up to your attic, your safety deposit boxes, or wherever your treasures are kept, and lend us your mementos of the past. . . . We promise to take under, loving care of them, and to return them intact to you!" You can contact committee member Mrs. William Hill Jr. at 723-7543.

MISS JUDY RANKIN left by plane yesterday for her residence at 3992 47th Street, Apt. C - 21, Sunnyside, Long Island City, N.Y., after spending three weeks at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Camp, recuperating from an appendectomy. Miss Rankin is employed by Chemical Bank New York Trust Company on Broadway in New York City.

AN INVITATION has been extended Court Warren No. 834 to attend a reception at Court Erie No. 515 on Sunday, April 9th at the Erie court. The reception will begin at 2 o'clock, followed by dinner at 5 o'clock. All reservations must be made no later than this Thursday, March 30th. Accepting them are Mrs. Charles Diesch at 723-1386; or in the evenings Mrs. Dan Doherty at 723-1481. (Mrs. Diesch may be reached anytime.) Offices are to attend prepared to formally robe for the ritual.

MINIATURES: The First Lutheran Men will have a Fellowship Breakfast at 6:45 a.m. next Sunday, with all to participate in Communion at the 8 a.m. church service. "The Restless Ones", will be presented in Erie by the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association, through the efforts of World Wide Pictures, Inc. The date is May 14th to 20th. The film according to publicity director, the Rev. John W. Hummuck, has been endorsed by all major religious bodies and civic groups of the various localities. For more information write to Mr. Hummuck at 727 West 32nd street, Erie, Penna. 16508.

Ann Landers
Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am sick and tired of people looking at doctors as if they were God or something. I had an experience that I wish you would print, it would help put things in the proper perspective.

I had major surgery recently. A few days after the operation my doctor came by for a routine check. After chatting a few minutes he said he was sure he had lost his pencil in my bed, and I didn't think it was possible, but he ignored me and went to tear the bed apart. After about 10 minutes of unaging around he found the pencil in his pocket. Every bit when was off the bed by that time and the pillow case was red inside out and thrown on the floor. I mentioned this incident to a friend and was told the doctor was testing my reaction, I was not in a psychiatric hospital and didn't understand this sort of thing. Please check with your medical consultants and find out what the world the doctor was doing. Thank you. — RITA

DEAR RITA: My medical consultants believe the doctor should be tested for HIS reactions because he sounds a little off his rocker.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A few years ago my two married sisters and I were complaining about our husbands' quirks. Mom told us a story that made a big impression on all of us. I'd like to pass it on. Mom said the night her last child was married (she has been a widow for years) she went back to her apartment and suddenly the emptiness of the place hit her all at once. She said it was really silly because her last-to-marry was a son who wasn't home much anyway. But suddenly she realized he wouldn't be home at all. And that was the awful part. She told my sisters and me to stop picking on our husbands, that most of the things wives complain about are not worth mentioning. From that day on I stopped nagging and our marriage has been a lot better ever since — ONE WHO LEARNED IN TIME

DEAR ONE: Thanks for your letter. And now let's hope others learn from you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A few weeks ago a friend invited our daughter (age 2) to a birthday party. The birthday boy was 3. It was made clear that parents were welcome and they would be served refreshments along with the children. I asked if the adults would be served cocktails and was told, "No. This party is for the children." My husband overheard the conversation and said, "I am not going." He made it plain that he didn't care about the drink, but he thought the hostess was most ungracious. I agreed and told the hostess how we felt. If adults want a cocktail the hostess should be happy to serve them one any time. In our home we wouldn't dream of doing it any other way. We would like your views on this. — MRS. S.L.L.

DEAR MRS. S.L.L.: I am with the hostess. It's a sad state of affairs when someone who does not serve liquor is considered ungracious. A mother who decides against serving cocktails to parents attending the birthday party of a child has good sense, in my opinion. I applaud her.

MISS DEB
... answers questions about Junior Miss etiquette, grooming and interests.

Q. I'm confused about how much jewelry to wear on a date. I've been watching other girls, and some wear necklaces and pins, bracelets and rings, while others wear no jewelry at all. What's right?

A. Depends on the occasion, the outfit, and you! Clothes with self-accessories such as collars, cuffs, lace or bows can be fashion-right with no jewelry at all. While simple jewel-necked dresses and blouses become more interesting with a pin or necklace to brighten them. Soon you'll be able to tell what jewelry to wear when by looking at yourself in the mirror.

Q. I'm going to spend a weekend with my sister at college. And I can't wait! Her roommate will be away and she's letting me use her bed. Should I take my sister's room-

Dorothy Jean Anderson Is Wed In Oakland, Calif., Ceremony

Dorothy Jean Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David J. Anderson of 1261 Eighth Ave., N.E., Largo, Florida, formerly of Warren, became the bride of LT. (JG) Roger Michael Burgess, USN, recently in a double ring military service held in the chapel on Treasure Island, San Francisco, California. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Burgess of RR No. 5, Topeka, Kansas.

The Rev. Donald E. Wagner of Ebenezer Lutheran Church, San Francisco, officiated. Chapel decorations included two baskets of gladioli and chrysanthemums. Traditional wedding music was played by A. C. Kaepfel, organist, and Miss Tarel Thollander was the vocal soloist.

Escorted on the arm of her father, the bride was gown in a floor length empire style bridal dress of silk shantung, with elbow length sleeves, scoop neckline, a band of floral lace applique defining the waistline. Her shoulder length veil depended from a Dior bow, and she carried an arrangement of stephanotis and leaves over a prayerbook carried by her mother and sister on their wedding day.

Mrs. Alfred Lindeman of Forrest Hills, N.Y., was the matron of honor, and the maid of honor was Miss Linda Gay Allebaugh of San Francisco, California. Both wore afternoon length time color gowns with short puffed veils secured by Dior bows and carried nosegays of yellow roses encircled by white carnations and ferns.

Best man was Leonard C. Griffen and ushers were Henry C. Brock, Edward W. Kirby, all of San Francisco. The mother of the bride selected a rose jacket dress with black accessories and the mother of the groom a navy blue knit suit with matching accessories. Both had white orchid corsages.

A reception was held after the ceremony, at the Fleet Admiral Nimitz Club, after which the newlyweds left for a honeymoon at Lake Tahoe, California and Nevada.

The bride is a 1958 graduate of Warren High School, and holds a Bachelor of Science degree from The Pennsylvania State University, and a Master's degree from the University of Virginia. She is a member of Delta Gamma sorority. The groom is a 1962 graduate of the University of Kansas and is a member of Phi Delta Theta. LT. (JG) and Mrs. Burgess will reside at 801 Corbett avenue, Apartment 9, San Francisco, California.

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE
After reading your column and treating many women patients, I would like to point out a few verses in The Bible which sound like your thesis: Namely: St. Luke, chapter 10, verses 38 through 42. It is the Biblical story of Mary and Martha.

Basically it is the story of the housewife Martha, who was so encumbered by her household chores (and self-pity for not having help) that she missed the true pleasure of Christ's visit; while her open, simple and loving sister, Mary, chose to sit at his feet and enjoy a visit which could never be taken away from her.

Medical Doctor

And after having read this six times, I think it would be wise each of you to open your Bibles and read it three or four times. And read it to your husbands, too. . . . Our blessings upon this Doctor who took the time to write.

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
When any member of our family is ill, and must eat breakfast in bed, I cut his toast into small squares, leaving it in the shape of the slice, and then put his egg on top of it.

It is much easier for an invalid to handle, since there is no cutting to do, and no slice of toast sliding into bed with them!

Hazel Crosby

DEAR HELOISE:
My thanks to the teen-ager who wrote about putting household cleanser on the bottom of white socks, scrubbing them with a brush (after soaking them in water), then washing as usual. It sure works.

Do you know that this same thing works on soiled collars and cuffs? No more dark lines on my family's white shirts. I just rub the cleanser in with my fingers, and stick the shirts in the washing machine.

Marie McClure

Some cleansers contain bleach. I do not recommend that you use bleach on colored clothes or anything it's not compatible with.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER
DEAR HELOISE:
How is it that a husband who can fit a '58 car engine into a '39 hot rod, can't pin a diaper on one teeny-weeny, wriggling baby?

Gloria

DEAR HELOISE:
We put a seat belt in the middle of the front seat of our car. Baby can be strapped to the baby carrier or car seat, then tucked in.
This is a wonderful safety device.

Mrs. G. T. Alah

DEAR HELOISE:
To shorten my growing son's new cuffed pants, I make a fold underneath the cuff, hand baste it around, and tack it on the outside where the cuff is tacked.
When the trousers need lengthening, I just snip the thread of the fold, and the trousers are lengthened, with the cuff already in place.
Believe me, it beats the old method of taking out the cuff, shortening the pants, and then putting the cuff back in.

DEAR HELOISE:
I save the last small bits of facial soap, and dry them thoroughly.

I then grate them on my kitchen grater; fill a small pill vial with this soap, and keep it in my purse.

If I am in a rest-room where there's no soap, I always have some in my purse. Seems like I always pick a rest-room that has run out of soap!

Lillian Herman

DEAR HELOISE:
Here is a hint my eleven-year-old granddaughter has thought of.

When you are going away and want to leave a note for someone, write it on an envelope. Turn the top open, wet it and stick it on your door inside your screen door.

It won't come off and can be seen easily by the expected caller.

Florence Cordell

DEAR HELOISE:
When any of our children are sick with a fever, I always freeze popsicles for them out of fruit juice.

When no other liquids will be taken, they will always eat the nice cold popsicles. Make different flavors so they can have a choice.

THE DUCHESS WAS THERE

Among the many celebrities present at a New York City department store's showing of its line-for-line Paris copies, was the Duchess of Windsor, center in the vertical striped outfit, who seemed grudgingly determined not to miss a single thread of the Coco Chanel tweed suit rushing by. The show drew a crowd of 2,500 people with a large sprinkling of renowned personalities making it seem somewhat more like a state function than a fashion show. (UPI Photo)

Sixty-Eight Attend WSCS Silent Candlelight Communion

Sixty-eight members attended the Silent Candlelight Communion Service held in Fellowship Hall of Grace Methodist Church by the Woman's Society of Christian Service. As members were seated around the tables, Mrs. Robert Young, who conducted the service, played "Chimes" on the piano.

The following took part in the program: Mrs. John Houston, Miss Evelyn Boyd, readers; Mrs. Robert Larson, Mrs. Clarence Johnson Jr., Mrs. Warren Carr, Mrs. John Harrington who served communion at the tables. Mrs. Roger Thoma, accompanied by Mrs. Young on the harpsichord, sang "Ashamed of Jesus", and "Bless Be The Tie That Binds" was sung by the Woman's Society. A trio composed of Mrs. Larry Knowlton, Miss Diane Silzle and Mrs. Raymond Morrison sang "Were You There?" and Mrs. Harry Drivas sang "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth" accompanied by Mrs. Ralph Findley. Mrs. Florence Anderson closed the service with prayer and benediction.

Preceding the service, a brief business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Raymond Rapp. Mrs. Mabel Adams announced the drawings of new circles in the near future. New subscriptions to Methodist Woman and World Outlook will cost $3 those present were told. The April 13 date for the Conference of the Woman's Society in Franklin was announced, and that the School of Missions at Allegheny College will take place from July 9 to 14.

LOOK, DON'T WIGGLE CAIRO (AP) — Sidewalk "Casanovas" of Egypt may stare at women, and set by with it. But if they accompany the gazing by eyebrow movements, or if they writhle, they will be considered as moral offenders. They will get a "Yul Brenner" style head shave.

In a sweeping campaign designed to purge Cairo "physically and morally," Saad Zayed, the Cairo governor, ordered police to arrest all misbehaving elements and shave their heads clean.

The governor was presumably disappointed at the results. The first two so-called offenders arrested were reported to have liked the clean shave.

Apples in cold storage in Pennsylvania totaled 509,000 bushels at the end of February, the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service has announced.

The apple storage is 57 percent lower than in January and 49 percent below February 1966 figures.

Pennsylvania's January-February hatch of 4,285,000 egg-type chicks was 4 percent more than for the similar period last year, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

Broiler-type chick production totaled 8,235,000, 4 percent less than for the first two months of last year.

Opening lead: Jack of South exhibited flawless technique by availing himself of every opportunity in successfully landing his four spade contract.

West opened the jack of hearts which was taken by dummy's king. On the surface it appeared that South was confronted with the loss of one trick in each of three suits—spades, hearts, and diamonds, so that the fate of the contract would hinge on the club finesse. Declarer observed that, if he were fortunate enough to find the club suit divided three-three with East holding the queen, he could establish an eventual discard in the suit, for his losing heart.

South was not particularly concerned with scoring an overtrick, however, for if the club finesse lost he would be automatically set inasmuch as the opponents would have time to get their heart trick in before he was able to take charge of the proceedings.

An additional prospect for a discard was available in the diamond suit provided that both missing honors were located in front of the ace-jack. At trick two South chose to lead a small diamond from dummy. East was obliged to put up the queen to prevent the declarer from winning the trick too cheaply. South played the ace of diamonds and recaptured the North hand with the ace of clubs in order to lead another diamond. East played the king, thereby establishing declarer's jack.

A heart was returned to drive out dummy's ace. South hastened to lead a club to the king, eschewing the finesse in favor of taking an immediate discard of North's losing heart on the jack of diamonds. This enabled him to ruff a heart and thereby confine his losers on the deal to one spade, one diamond, and one club.

Finding both diamond honors favorably located was admittedly a somewhat remote prospect, but the play could be attempted at no cost, for if it failed, declarer could always fall back on the club finesse as a final resort.

Your Horoscope

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, FOR TUESDAY, MARCH 28, 1967

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — Your ambitious and normally bright, enterprising self can be given full rein now. Map route for the coming week along sound and solid lines. You are in a position to make fine long-range plans.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — You can do remarkably well when you try — and in minor matters as well as big projects which attract attention. Remember this today as you try for new records which you CAN attain.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — Mercury's present influences indicate some obstacles — not insurmountable, but annoying unless you retain control of temper and emotions. Stress your sense of humor.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — Pressing duties? Give yourself a breather now and then. Don't drive yourself unmercifully. You will accomplish more without anxiety.

LEO (July 24 to August 23) — You should be highly optimistic now. Help lift others' morale as you go through what should be a pleasant day.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — This could be a topsy-turvy day if the proposals of some are followed. Bring your sensible thoughts into focus and reject unwise suggestions.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — Look before you step. Less tension, more ease, wise distribution of energies are all vital to success, contentment. Make ready for a busy week ahead.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22) — You may face some inconveniences but the end result justifies them and will compensate if you handle situations maturely. Circulate fresh ideas, perk up enthusiasm.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — Jupiter influences benefic, in dealings with others, stress sportsmanship and fair play. A day for high aims and benevolence. Divorce self from agitators.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — Alternating influences, mostly on the bright side. Avoid antagonism and gloom. There should be no receding to yesterdays. Look FORWARD!

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — New and diversified activities indicated. Review last week's efforts to guide you in formulating future plans. Don't draw hasty conclusions or spread rumors.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — Avoid radical ideas, misdirected endeavors, wasting talents on non-essentials. Garner experience through good listening, talking things over.

YOU BORN TODAY can have a full and very useful life by developing DAILY, not spasmodically, your many fine characteristics. You have the will power; put it to work for worthwhile purposes and aims. You can become over-enthusiased, bring on fatigue. Guard against this, and shun fiery positivism. When you feel a "no!" coming on, stop, re-consider. Perhaps you should be saying "yes!" and with your best enthusiastic ardor. Members of this zodiacal sector, under Mars, boast some of the strongest-minded, most stalwart soldiers and fiery backers of humanitarian causes. You have personal magnetism. Couple this trait with well-developed talents and you can accomplish the "impossible." Birthdate: Herbert Lehmann, American statesman.

How to Keep Well

TREATMENT OF PARKINSONISM

Yesterday we described the surgical treatment of parkinsonism (shaking palsy). The victims usually are over 60 years of age and have tremulousness of the hands and head with marked stiffness of the muscles. In addition there is a mask-like expression to the face. There are many drugs that control muscle rigidity, tremor, or elevate the mood. A few of these are Akineton, Artane, Cogentin, Parsidol, Benadryl, and Elavil. Disipal is used occasionally to control drooling.

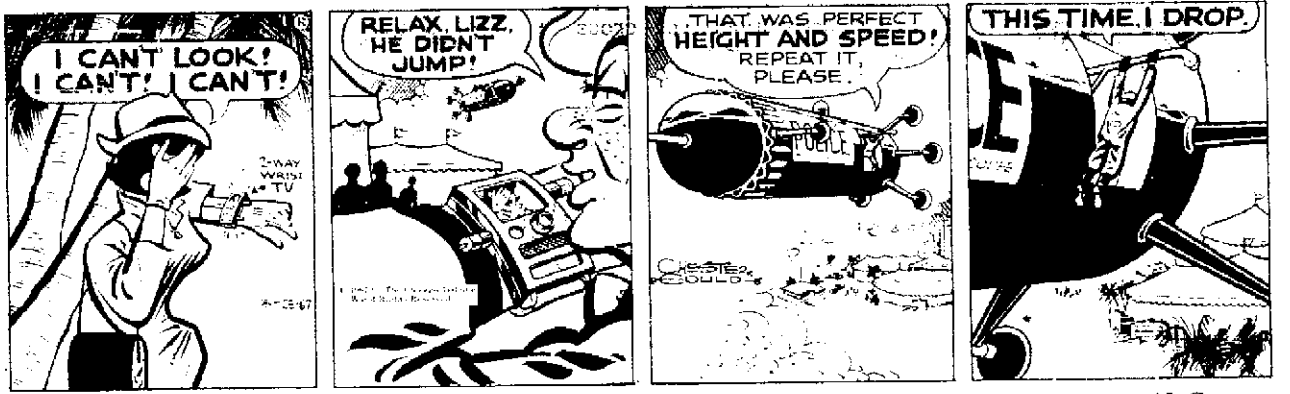

Skilled physical therapy is equally important to keep the individual on the go. Exercise prevents weakness and minimizes stiffness. Fatigue is a poor excuse for not wanting to increase physical activity. Therapeutic exercises such as the stretch-and-pull type are done on a bed or preferably on a mat. The arms and legs are flexed, extended, rotated and bent with or without help.

Stretching a rigid and shortened muscle is extremely important. Activities that improve walking, going up and down stairs, getting out of the auto, and actions associated with eating, dressing, and hygiene are most helpful. All improve performance and when done daily, the victim will become stronger.

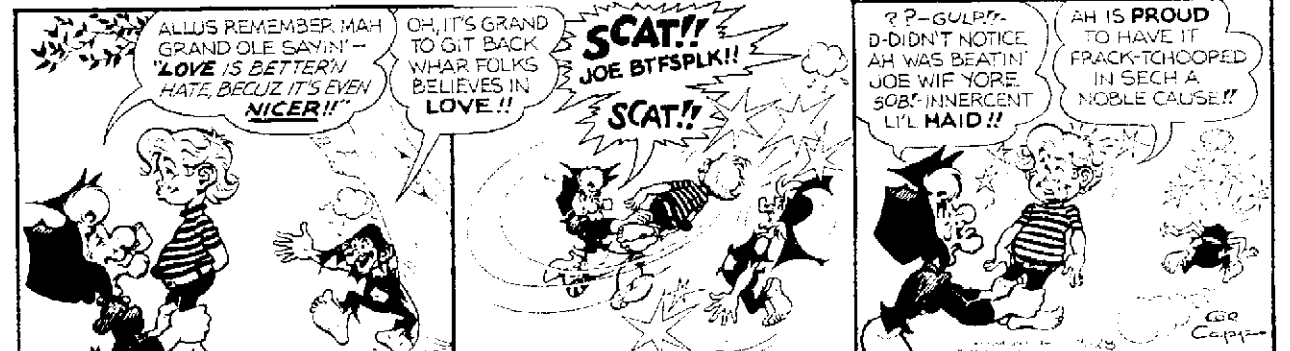

Swimming, floating, exercising, or relaxing in warm water is beneficial. These can be done in a pool or in a Hubbard tank. Whirlpool baths and hot packs also have their place. Ultrasonic waves relieve painful areas. Electrical muscle stimulation is recommended occasionally to improve function of the upper and lower extremities. Dancing improves gait.

There are many assistive or self-help devices with which the individual can eat, drink, write, and hold an electric shaver. Speech therapy may be needed in the total rehabilitation of the victim.

Scott Leader in Revolt Against GOP Moderates

By HUGH FLEMING

WASHINGTON — A group of GOP House and Senate moderates led by Senator Hugh Scott seeded seeds of revolt against their congressional leaders this week at a pump session held at the home of a wealthy Washington publisher and sponsored by the National Committee for an effective Congress, a non-partisan political organization which has substantial financial aid to liberal congressional candidates, mainly Democrats.

Those attending the meeting did not hesitate to admit afterwards that the purpose of the meeting was aimed at encouraging Republican moderates to split with GOP House leader Gerald Ford, Republican conference chairman Melvin Laird, Republican Research and Program chairman Charles E. Goodell and with Senate Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen.

One house member following the meeting said he had "seldom heard a more open invitation to revolt than expressed by Senator Scott."

It is understood Scott called GOP leaders "senior safes" who discouraged independent thinking. It is understood he urged younger members to be "independent" and "daring" enough to buck the conservative establishment.

Senator Scott has often been out of step with his party's leadership. He has been upset with Senator Dirksen lately because the Minority leader failed to support him for chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee. The post went to conservative George Murphy.

Those from Pennsylvania besides Senator Scott at the meeting were Congressman Joseph M. McDade from Scranton and Congressman James G. Fulton from Pittsburgh.

Dog Leads To Arrest Of 3 Teenagers

ERIE—A dog that was identified as the one that accompanied three youths in the Sunday afternoon burglary of an Erie manufacturing firm led to the arrest of three teenagers who were later charged with the burglary.

John Pauley Jr., 218 W. 19th st., Columbus House, 18, 230 W. 19th, and a 15-year-old youth were charged by Erie police in the burglary of the Ruberoid Company plant, 140 E. 16th st., after their arrest by Patrolman Lawrence Weiss and Forrest Tuck.

Police said the building was entered and cigarette and milk machines opened.

The trio and a dog were frightened away by the watchmen who later identified the dog.

The 15-year-old was released to the custody of his parents for juvenile authorities while Pauley and House were arraigned before Alderman Elliott LeFolwer Sunday night.

Attorney Fights Anti-Nazi Law

OLEAN, N.Y.—Robert C. Murrin of Olean, president of the Cattaraugus County Bar Association, has contended that the law forbidding the wearing of parts of the Nazi uniform is unconstitutional.

Murrin was referring to last Monday's arrest of an Olean youth by city police under Sec. 1484B of the State Penal Law because he was wearing a metal cross on a chain around his neck.

The cross, a black Maltese Cross, was alleged to be a replica of Germany's Iron Cross decoration. The cross was worn by Bruce L. Morris, 18, of 628 Queen st., Olean, and sold by an Olean store. It was advertised as a "Maltese Car Crest."

Murrin said he will submit a memorandum as president of the Bar Association informing the Town of Olean Peace Justice Ralph Goff, who is handling the case, of these views. He added he is not defending Morris.

GOP Women To Hear 11 Candidates

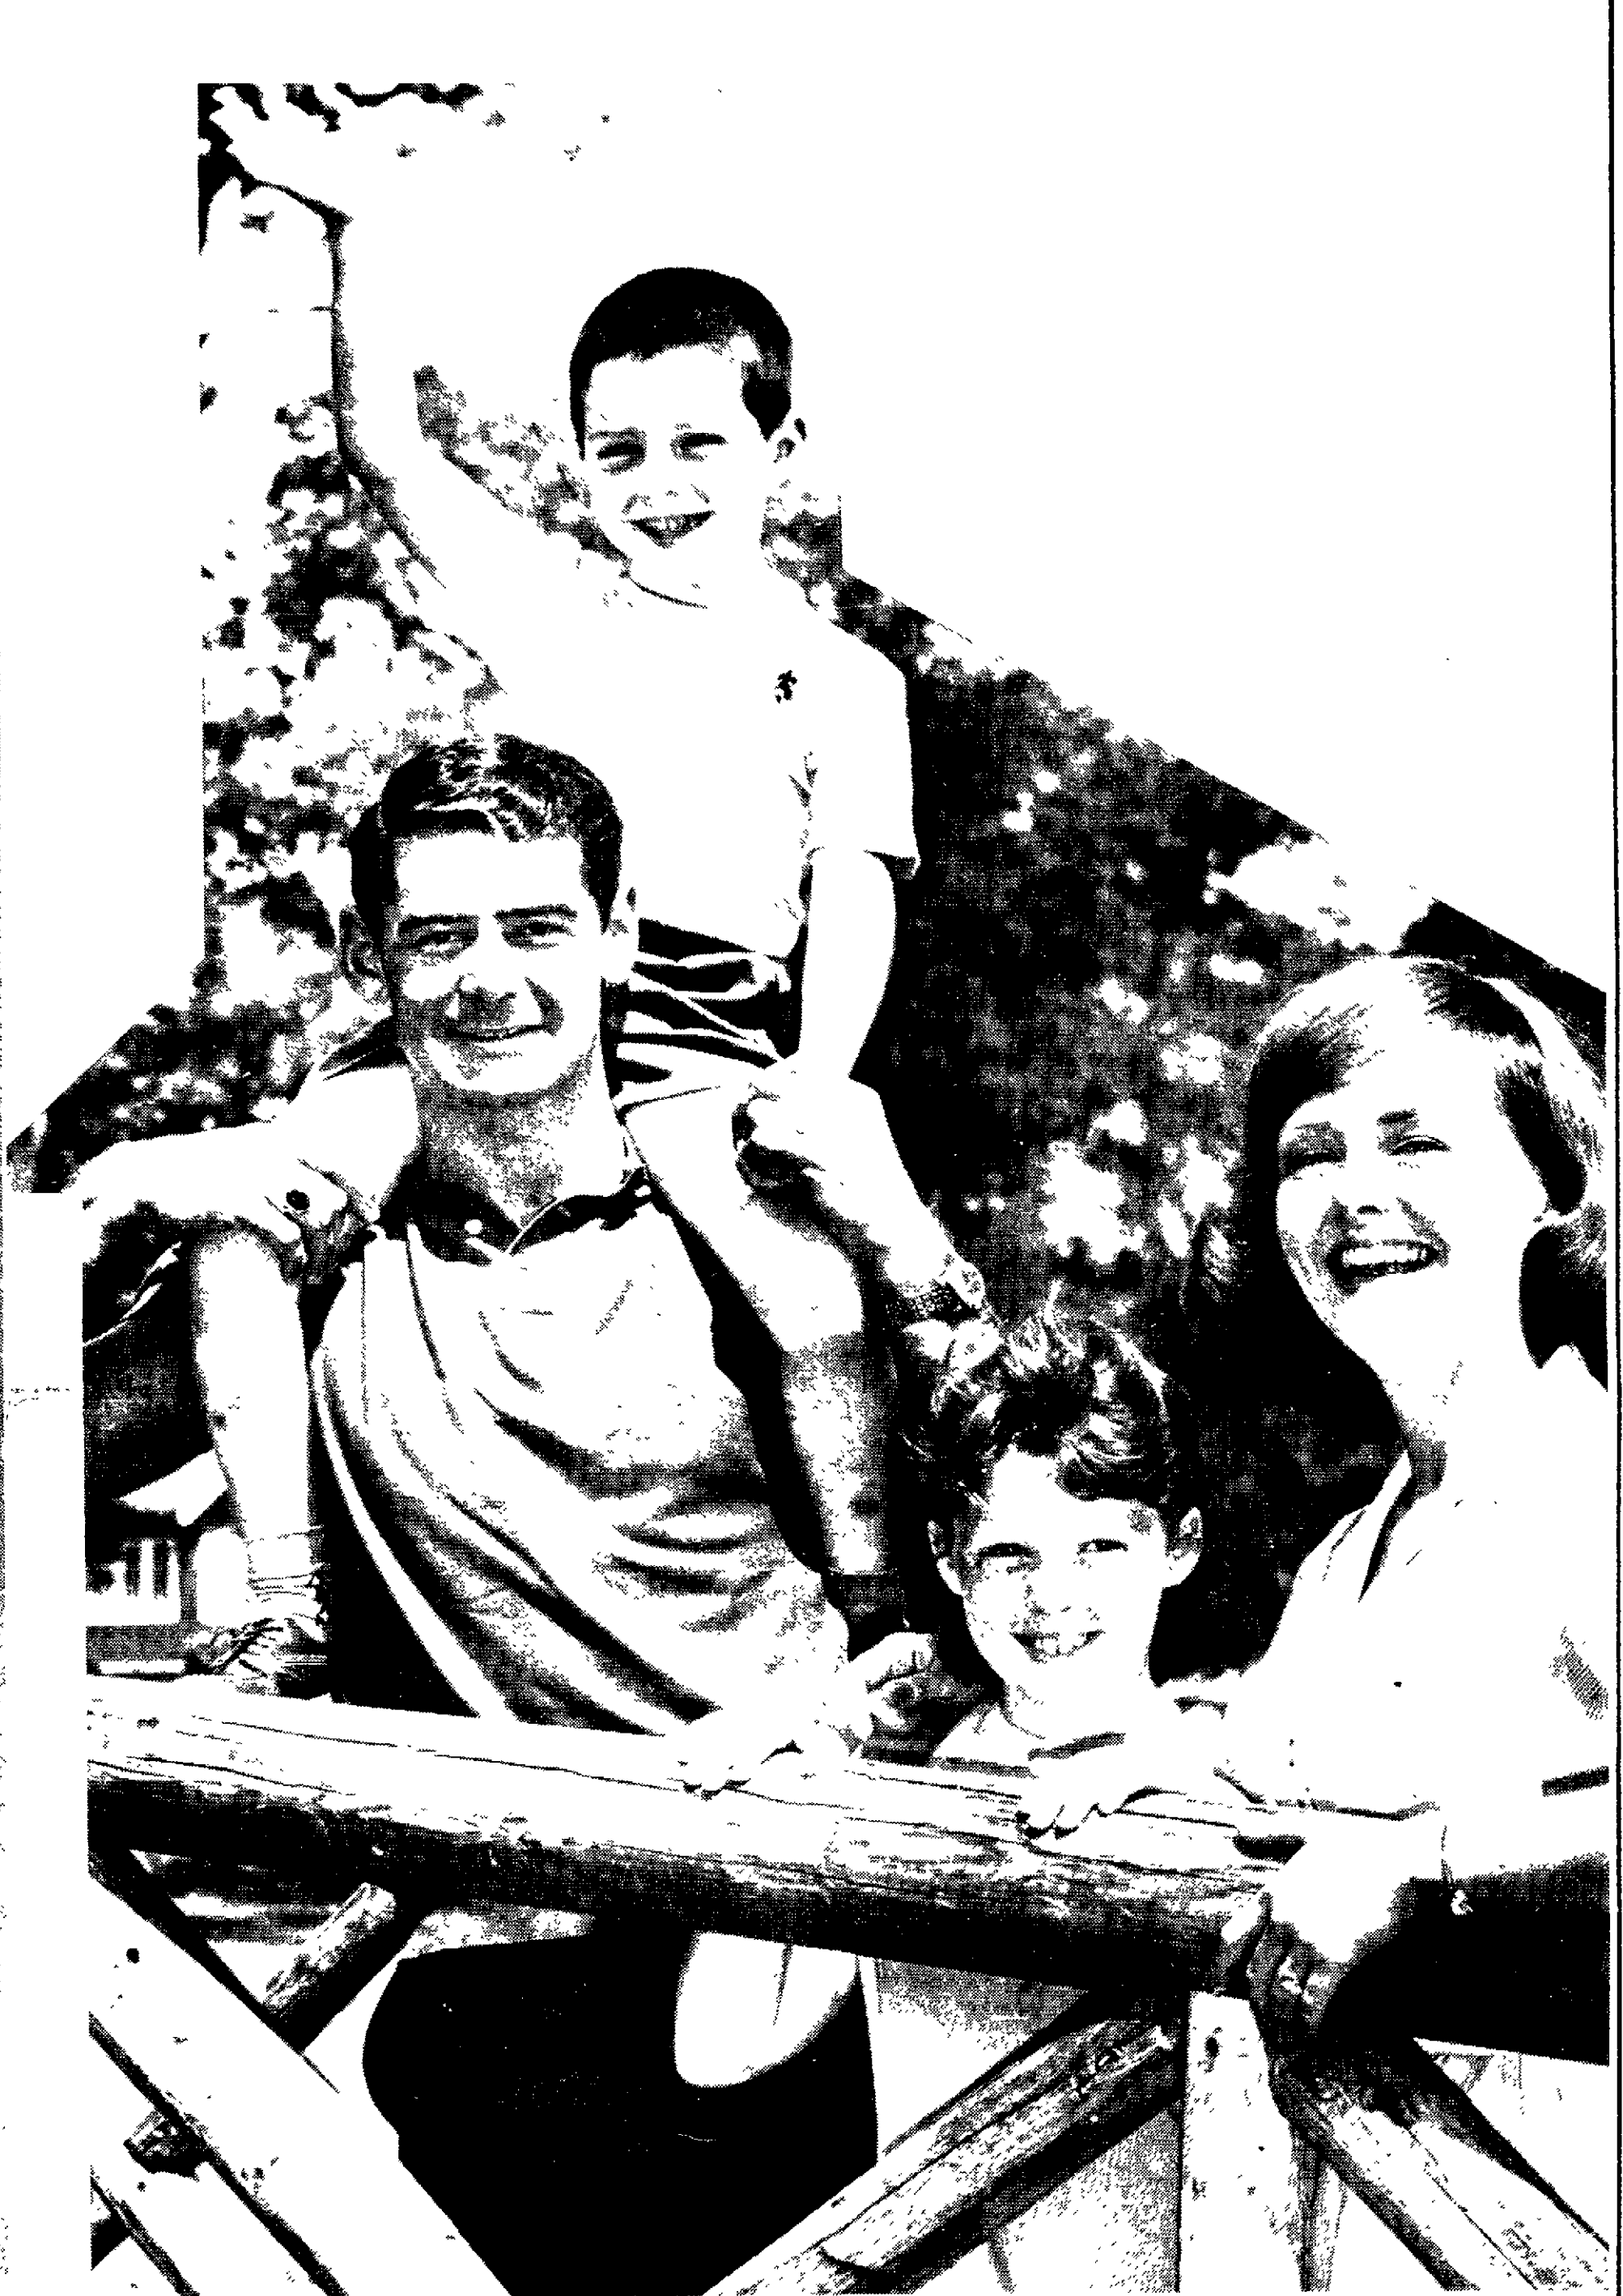

Eleven Republican candidates seeking the post of county commissioner have been invited to a special event sponsored by the Warren County Council of Republican Women.

The "Meet the Candidates" night is scheduled for April 6 at 8 p.m. in the large court room and is an open meeting to which all interested persons are invited.

Each candidate introduced will be provided the opportunity to speak for two or three minutes as to his qualifications for the office and will then form a panel to which questions from those present may be directed.

Refreshments will be served. The GOP women will meet for a brief business session prior to the formal program at 7:30 p.m. in the jury room at the court house.

Congressman Johnson's Daughter in Off-Broadway Musical; Talent Runs in Family

By HUGH FLEMING
TMO Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — Congressman Albert Johnson is walking around the halls of Congress these days as proud as any peacock you ever saw.
No election victory either to the Pennsylvania legislature or to the national congress has pushed his chest out quite so far.
For has not his youngest child, 27-year old Karen, just opened in a most successful off-Broadway musical based on the "Peanuts" comic strip called "You're A Good Man Charlie Brown," Karen is not new to the theater. She has toured with the national company of "Stop the World I Want To Get Off" and played the same show two summers ago at Shady Grove here in Washington.

They say early life was tough for little Karen whose big brothers tormented her by saying she was "so little and ugly". Her mother doesn't go along with this.
"It is true Karen was small, but she never just walked into a room, she always made an entrance."
But talent certainly runs in the Johnson family.
Besides Karen there is an artist, a singer, a poetess and an instrumentalist.

Johnson himself plays the mandolin, the walls of their Washington apartment are lined with the water color paintings of his son David, a lawyer in Pittsburgh.
Then there is Ronald called by his father a "crooner type" baritone who can sing the "September Song" and make you weep.
Ronald, a lawyer for the Apollo program in Daytona Beach, Fla., so far has only sung for free, but he has received enough offers from night clubs to put him into a much higher tax bracket.
Then there is Mrs. Johnson. To her poetry is a fairly recent discovery. She recently enrolled in a creative writing class taught by Mrs. Len Jordan, the wife of the Idaho senator, and wrote some short stories. Then she switched to what she calls "kooky" poetry.

Mrs. Johnson writes much about Washington, her home and familiar places. The Washington Sunday Star recently ran her poem entitled "Insomnia."
In this family story it would be unfair not to mention Richmond who is just a lawyer in his father's office in Smethport, port.

Five 4-H Groups To Visit Plant

This evening the Pennsylvania Electric Company and Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. power plant will be host to all five Warren County 4-H Electric Clubs.
Members of these 4-H Electric clubs have been studying electricity, care, use and minor repairs of electric appliances, and tonight's tour will give better understanding of how electric power is generated, and the exceptional facility the Pennsylvania Electric Company provides to serve this region.
The clubs making the tour are: Miller Hill 4-H Electric Club, Robert Resh, leader; Mickle Hill Electric Club, Elmer Blystone and Marshall Danielson, leaders; Spring Creek 4-H Electric Club, the Rev. Marlin Clingsmith, leader; Columbus-Bear Lake 4-H Electric Club, Harvey Martin, leader; Warren 4-H Electric Club, Dale Brown, leader.

Nabbed Driving Without License

Borough police officer Robert Kates apprehended a former Grand Valley man at 1:30 p.m. Saturday on W. Third ave.
Charged with driving during a period of suspension is Donald E. Wilson Jr., of 13½ Madison ave.
According to police, this was Wilson's second offense. He was cited for the same violation on February 27 of this year, police said.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth suffer embarrassment because their prosthesis drop, slip or wobble at just the wrong time. Don't live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FAS-TEETH, the non-toxic powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly so they feel more comfortable. Checks denture breath. Dentures that fit are essential to health. See your dentist regularly. Get FAS-TEETH at all drug counters.
